196: Prologue

XXXXXXXXXXXX

Main Characters:

Anne an American, psychologist. An attractive blond, she claims to be a nymphomaniac, 31 years old. Hereafter known as “A.”

Christine: A Canadian archaeologist/historian, an idealist also an attractive blonde, 30 years old. Hereafter known as “C”.

C said, “It’s agreed then. We will travel to all 196 independent countries and we will wear a ring on the marriage finger that has “196” engraved upon it.

The idea was to find at least one local lover in each and every country in the world. Each lover must be born in that country.

Some said we were sluts, but we considered ourselves to be adventurers. But we couldn’t leave any country without loving a local man.

An inspiration to women we hoped when we finally released our DVDs at the end of the trip.

We started out with virtually no connections...

But we planned to keep a blog of highlights for each country, and the idea was to attract more and more people to their “club.” Maybe we can be famous and rich so that we can do charity work. Encourage people who are great lovers to join. Wild Love Inc.

To join the club you needed to have an AIDS test and be clever as well. You had to pass the test. Our female secretary looked after that. She was our first employee and we hoped to have dozens and our own jet soon.

A said, “As for the sights; we’ve seen in books, we want to meet all the interesting people we can find, especially men.”

C said “I like seeing the sights, but I too primarily want to meet interesting men.”

So it was we were to visit all 196 independent countries including Kosovo Taiwan, Palestine (Gaza), the Vatican, Montenegro, East Timor and Eritrea.

The idea was to compare notes at the end of each country's one week trip and laugh and revel in it. And there was to be no secrets between each other. Kiss and tell.

Most of our Net conversation is aimed at getting new friends so when we go to a place they are waiting to show us their country.

We hope to try to do good work where we can.

Help charities and become famous so we can help them more. There are far too many poor people, 1 billion below the poverty line...

Once you are famous this world is your oyster...

Baggage; we traveled light...

Clothes: jeans and t-shirts and a light jacket at the beginning...

And not much cash.

No point in "culture" which was nothing more than stupid backwards ways... We were representatives of the "new light..."

Sometimes split up, and at the end of the trip to that country they discuss it and love and life and so on...

Globe shaker, $10 USD. The globe shaker was a globe half-filled with sand with a handle on it so you could hold it and shake it.

Idea was to have most of our club to have a globe shaker and make it popular.

Let's take the globe and shake it...

Internet chat friends were to meet us at many airports. Or so was the plan. Both of us were very outgoing and had a lot of friends and friends of friends for the trip. However unless by special agreement we only wanted to meet local people, we didn't want a huge following except for our end of trip party. In any case many countries would not allow such parties and fun in their nations, considering it subversive. And also we wanted to meet as many new people as possible.

7 days X 196 countries= 3.5 years

Begin December 21, 2021, until September 2024

We'll be approaching old age, but we both agreed no children until it was over.

EUROPE
XXXXXX

PORTUGAL, Dec 21, 2021

Population: 10.8 million

Capital: Lisbon, 2.7 million

We started in Portugal for no reason or another except we had a good friend here in Lisbon...

Fish and seafood. Went out with a fishing crew to fish and party. Plenty of drinks...

“Port wine is delicious” said C. A said, “It was too sweet.”

Algarve tourist area was in the south with nice beaches; we avoided it.

Wet weather we stayed inside

But afterwards we two adventurers split up as was to be our custom. We both worked better alone. We gave surprises to a lot of men...

C met a nice lawyer who wined and dined her, but ultimately his sex drive was too low for her...

A said, “It would be good to have everyone have a “Love Q” so we know who the great lovers are,” she said. “Emotionally and physically.”

C responded, “Yes it would save us a lot of time.”

A said, “One man I met could only be described as kinky.”

C said, “Weird sex can be fun, I am open to any kind of kinky man. You have to be bold to say you are kinky.”

A said, “Here I wore orange lipstick, no bra...very short skirt, dark make up and be ready for sex any way anywhere.”

C said, “I met another man who took me to a transsexual party; it was bizarre; I was the only woman there...Why aren’t some people happy with their natural body?”

A said, “I met another man too who said he would one day be the most famous writer in the world.” He told her “He was a starving artist living on welfare, but he would never give up. It’s my blue period,” he said.

So those were the highlights of our Portugal trip...

All taped it through a camcorder.

SPAIN

Population: 46 million

Capital: Madrid, 6 million.

The country is number 2 in terms of numbers of tourists (France is #1)...

C said, “I met a man who was like the Spanish Inquisition, just asking and asking questions. He wouldn’t shut up so I went elsewhere.”

Yes, said A, “Some people don’t know how to converse. They live in an imaginary world just like Don Quixote and his illusions.”

C wanted to see ancient cave paintings as well as the works of Picasso, Dali, Gaudi and so on. In ancient times there were ancestors of these painters painting on caves and no doubt wood.

So we partied down in Spanish style, but ignored the Flamenco dance as we disliked all kinds of dancing... And we drank; sherry, sweet sherry most of the time.

We weren't against stealing others' lovers away. Takes two to tango.

We met a magnate here (married) who loved us both and donated a private jet with two lovable pilots to the cause... His only stipulation was that he could visit us several times during the trip.

It was then that we realized our trip would be a success...

Things were going good and we anticipated lots of parties and riches and fame.

And we set up our blog. We had blog memberships for sale and we hired a secretary to set up meetings with people in other countries so they could pick us up and introduce us to many of the best people in their town (usually in the capital city)... The countryside was backwards and boring for the most part. And we sold 195 rings and globe shakers to 1000s of people... And plenty of donations pouring in.

And now the paparazzi knew all about the story so we had our friends organize avoiding them. Places where we went no digital cameras were allowed but they still got through with some of them, digital cameras can be hidden easily on the body. So now we also added 4 bodyguards (the plane was a 36-seater)...

And to join our club people had to answer questions such as: In what way are you creative? What is your dream? How do you help people? What is good love for you? Questions varied but all decisions on membership were left to A and C at the suggestion of our secretary.

Both made love with the pilots in Barcelona and then went out into Madrid.

C: I met a dynamite man with brilliant ideas. He said he was a struggling movie maker.

C added: We asked him to join us, but he didn't want fame. Even with a large number of things to film...

In any case he finally acquiesced and said he would try to cover everything, but since C and A often split up in countries, he recommended his friend so there would be two photographers to chronicle the trip.

C said, "What about you, did you find love, here in Madrid?"

A said, "I made sweet love with an architect and sculptor. I told him to design a tower for us and that we would pay when we were famous." He took it seriously and began working in bronze to match with the statue of liberty, but he told us it would be a "surprise which he would reveal in 2014 at the final party."

A asked, "How do you feel about truth and love? I met a man who lied to me one time and he was from Spain."

C said, "I think everyone should have a lie detector."

A said "There would be a lot of suicide and madness if people couldn't lie. Lying is part of our culture, but if everyone was honest no one would be friends or loving towards one another."

And in the middle of the week was New Year's Eve and we had an insane party, we sold 100s of 195 rings and globe shakers.

So we now had two pilots, 4 guards, a secretary, 2 photographers (as we often split up) and a chef as well 12 people in all on a 36 seat jet.

ANDORRA

Population: 85 000

Capital: Andorra La Vella

Foreigners made up 67% of the population...

It was ski season...

No one in our club here...

A said, "I can find men anywhere. I scored two very young gentlemen. It was easy."

C said, "I struck out a couple of times, but finally scored a ski tour operator. Hard to get laid in such a conservative place."

"Middle of nowhere," said C.

A said, "Lighten up. We got to take the good with the bad."

But we sold a lot of globe shakers and 195 rings and many people here were interested in our quest.

C said, "I dislike small towns. Too dull."

A said "There is gold everywhere, if you look well enough."

And A said "I may not have the golden touch but I have the 'sex touch.' I can find sexual situations where others can't see it."

FRANCE

Population: 62 million

Capital: Paris, 12 million

Met at airport by about 15 friends...

Paparazzi had got wind of the story and took pictures too, but we thought it was good publicity for our charity movement.

We were invited to a chateaux winery and there argued about the French Revolution. A said, the French stole the revolutionary idea from the Americans (US revolution was in 1776, French revolution in 1789).

Robespierre, Marat and so on it was total chaos, said C.

A also said, "Paris is ugly but I love the French countryside with its beautiful chateaux.

C said they were going to tear down the Eiffel tower but then radio was invented and they needed a high place.

And C was saying the best place in Canada was French speaking Montreal. Passionate French people. Many of the population of Quebec were descendants of the voyagers, adventurers...

Expensive wines stocked our plane...

C said she liked Marie Antoinette, "Let them eat cake. She was haughty and proud."

A said, “One of the results of the French revolution was they could now eat white bread instead of brown. ‘Let them eat cake.’”

A was saying she liked Pierre Boule’s “Monkey Planet/Planet of the Apes”

C said, “The future will be full of surprises.

And C was talking about Voltaire. She said, “One of our “suitors” was talking about Voltaire and free speech. And how we should cultivate our gardens.

C said, “And are we women the gardens?”

A brought out our globe shakers and we kept shaking them, saying let’s eliminate injustice.

Then later another “suitor” was talking about the Marquis de Sade.

C said, “He was a great man.”

A said, “There are a lot of perverts out there.”

And A said, “A lot of women lose control in love and will do anything to please their lover...”

Tough yet feminine women here. And some men are so passionate here.

Passionate about everything: love, food, soccer, travel...

However there is a need for English, here. But many young people are now finally learning English.

A poet told us it is easy to survive here on bread, cheese and wine...

But we visited a few countryside chateaux, and partied with good wine produced locally.

C was saying... “We all trap one another and try to dominate each other.”

A argued, “Of course as Voltaire said the philosopher king of Plato was the future. No such thing as a philosopher king, all kings are intoxicated with power and most become ruthless. Better to have mediocre politicians who don’t do anything. The less they do the better.”

C said, “I met a man here and he showed me the meaning of passion. I never knew passion till I met him.”

LUXEMBOURG

Population 500 000

German, French and English are spoken here. Recently concentrating on English.

A scored several men on the trip. They were all rich and fun-loving. They donated some money to the cause.

C said, “If I am not in love, I can’t do it.”

A said, “What you are only looking for soul mates? This trip is about sex not love.”

C said, “It takes some getting used to try hard all the time to find love/sex.”

And C said it is just that here is such a small country, there are not many good men to choose from.

But finally C had to settle for an old man, who was very ordinary.

“What’s wrong with old men? They have experience and can take viagra.”
Said C...

“It’s a sex world.” Said A. “Some are winners and some are losers... But wisdom is worth something,” she said.

And A said, “There’s a difference between soul mates and perfect loves. Perfect loves only last a short time whereas some people claim their soul mates last for years (even though I don’t believe it).”

But A said, “But there are some men I couldn’t get and this peeves me to no end... I have regrets...”

MONACO

Population: 34 000

Mostly a tax haven with many French expatriates and yachts.

Grace Kelly married the prince of Monaco 50 years ago and was the most famous thing here.

Grand Prix race also.

Yachts in summer. So many rich people. But alas it was winter and not so exciting. Still we figured we were like magicians and can make something out of nothing.

So we went with two rich men on boats and cruised the French coast.

Paparazzi couldn't find us here.

A got drunk and fell into the water and had to be rescued

A couple of days later, A said "I fell in love with a Saudi prince. He was highly intellectual."

C said the bars here were full of rich men, one bar everyone had a code on their chest saying what kind of man/woman they were/ were looking for. "So I met a tycoon here," she said.

A spent a lot of time networking here to get us ready for Switzerland.

So now we had the pilot the co-pilot, 8 bodyguards, a secretary, two camera men, a chef and all we needed was a musician. So we found one here, a wandering busker who was very handsome and talented. So 19 in total but the plane held 36 seats...

It was always a good party on board the plane.

SWITZERLAND

Population 8 million

Largest city, Zurich, 400 000

Capital Bern.

Expensive with a high cost of living.

Skiing in the Alps was exciting.

Some hiking in the snow also.

We decided to party in Zurich.

Our friends brought us to some Mountain chalets...

Peace-loving party people.

Kind of conservative and of course rich

One of our friends organized non stop parties in exclusive clubs away from the paparazzi.

Our busker suggested Switzerland got rich through laundering criminal's wealth, no questions asked.

Even Nazi gold...

We were starting to get donations to our African and other charities; things were going well.

A nice man and his fellows invited our whole crew to his chalet on the Alps. We all had fun and we both got laid several times.

C remarked, "That it was like brotherly love here in this chalet."

A said, "Brotherly love is good. If the whole world spent more time loving and less on earning money, it would be sublime."

“But in the 1960s, those hippies thought to change human nature, but they failed,” C said.

We also went to some bars demanding of the bar keep to introduce us to the most interesting people around.

We had some good nights of sex rather than love but it was grand. Nothing was wrong.

GERMANY

Population: 84 million

Capital: Berlin, 3.8 million

Two dozen friends were waiting for us at Berlin airport...

We went to a club where they played classic German rock. It was pretty good...

New age music, we both loved also.

But generally in Germany rock is dead, they liked trance dancing and ecstasy here.

We toured many castles...

We partied in the beer halls, as if it was Oktoberfest.

A was saying, Grimm fairy tales are not all good. Some are just plain ordinary.

C was saying “That Nietzsche had neglected to mention a super woman.”

A said, “a super woman” would be kind and loving and clever and interesting. But above all clever.

“And it seems,” A said, “That Nietzsche thought himself to be a model for a superman. But he was just a philosopher of mediocre ability.

C was saying she liked the German book Steppenwolf; saying boring middle class life, we hate. A wolf on the steppes is for us.

Food was good here especially veal with sauerkraut.

A asked “Why didn’t someone shoot Hitler at one of his parades? Instead everyone marched to war; you can get people to do anything...”

Same old story with dictators, they get worse and worse while their power grows. And many people are apathetic no matter what...

C said, “I like these tough, drunken Germans who are so aggressive.”

A said, “You find love everywhere of course. But I scored a brilliant politician who showed me Germany. Actually Germans are passionate too.”

A jealous wife harassed C. A Cat fight ensued; no harm done.

Also A said, “A man hypnotized me and got me to love him. Bad to lose control like that to someone you don’t even know.”

“Castles in the air...” said C

LIECHTENSTEIN

Population: 35 000

Capital: Vaduz

Prince of Liechtenstein worth almost 4 billion is 6th richest man in the world
By some surveys Liechtenstein is the richest country in the world.

No friends here to show us around, but...

A was like a magician and got 5 lovers here.

C found one.

But one man told A, “That although she was beautiful she should get plastic surgery to enlarge her breasts.”

But she told him she was already a size 38 inch bra type. Backwards thinking she thought.

C met a man who was a clown who said he could do tricks, but it was a bluff.

HOLLAND

Population: 16 million

Major city, Amsterdam, 760 000

Tallest men in the world.

I like tall men, said A

More flowers here than elsewhere. Export flowers...

A number of men gave us flowers... dead flowers.

Open minded people? Or not? Hard to say.

Or is just the government open-minded?

C wanted to see paintings by the likes of Van Gogh, Rembrandt and Vermeer. "No big deal," she said. She added, "I like futuristic paintings."

As for Dutch books, there is not any I would want to read, said A.

C said "Erasmus' 'In Praise of Folly' was good though. A long time ago but there are always plenty of fools."

Anyway we indulged in legal Marijuana.

"A said they should legalize more drugs..."

And it is good to make prostitution legal everywhere so they can get AIDS tests...

Holland was an eco powerhouse: Windmills for cheap power and reclaim more land from the sea...

Heineken beer so popular (#2 in the world) but it is very ordinary beer.

Musically Holland was not that successful.

Not much music, but painters...

C viewed the Bog Men archaeologically so well preserved in the swamp. Maybe clone them one day.

A said, "Men are like snakes in a bog, and can't be trusted." She said she met such a man here in Holland, while we were split up as per usual..."

A said, "Yes, and you need to charm snakes and make them do your bidding."

And A said, "No need to trust a man..."

And A said, "Just don't fall into his cage is all."

C said she spent most of her time Online trying to get people with interesting stories to share them and join the group. She was very disappointed with Holland.

A said, "There are tons of men all over the place; just because you had one bad experience, doesn't mean "once bitten twice shy."

And A said, "One-night-stands are the best loves, of course."

A introduced C to some men and one was to her liking so all was well.

BELGIUM

Population: 11 million

Capital: Brussels, 1.8 million

Strong beers, but most of them were too sweet.

Red roofs in Brussels and elsewhere.

Flemish Dutch 60% speak it, rest are French

Golden Dragon beer was 10.5 % alcohol.

Beers are strong here but generally too sweet...

Beer with fruit and coffee and so on. They have done a lot of experimentation... “Still,” said A, “I wished I’d studied to be a brew master. There is always room for experimentation.”

French fries were invented here...

A said, “I am in love with a nice poet and I almost don’t want to leave.”

C said, “Pull yourself together. What is wrong with you?”

C had lowered her standards to love a brilliant man who was not good looking.

A said, “Sounds good to me. Brilliant men are hard to find.”

A said, “I met a young virgin and showed him the ropes, “It was a perfect experience.”

C said, “Yeah, virginity is something to get rid of as fast as possible.”

A said, “We played strip poker and he lost. But then before loving me he chained me up and whipped me. It was too sadist for me, getting whipped by a virgin.”

Anyway it was here in Holland that we continued selling our rings, with “195” engraved in them. They sold for $1000 and included inclusion in our web site. Also our globe shakers sold well. Better and better. Also for $1000.

C said, “Maybe some day most people will wear our rings to show solidarity with our love movement.”

UK

Population: 62 million

Capital: London, population 8 million plus

London is relatively safe in most areas...

Strange people gravitate to the downtown area.

And we met an amateur actress, who refused to “sell out” to Hollywood. “Go to Hollywood,” we told her.

A said “Speed lit for all books in English... Every book should be abridged for easy reading. Just want to hear the plot... Just like our trip. When it is over our DVD set of the trip will be mostly plot and dialog.”

C said “Yes just like our trip we only talk about the highlights for better or for worse.”

We toured the country. Ugly Manchester and Birmingham had a good nightlife but were surprisingly ugly. A lot of old Victorian row houses... Edinburgh castle and its environs, however was beautiful.

Many rich people live in the British countryside...

A met a English professor, who talked about Joseph Conrad’s, “An Outcast of the Islands...” A story of culture shock, just like all around the world, native people were confused and shocked. The British among others took advantage of this culture shock to conquer many peoples with only a few ships at a time. He who can master cultures is king.

And he said excellent books were A.C. Clarke’s 2001, 2010, Rendez-vous with Rama , Childhood’s End and he said he was the best sci-fi writer ever.

A said, Clarke is always going on about aliens and it gets dull after a while..

A said, “And then there was Burgess ‘a Clockwork Orange’ involving hypnotism... Hypnotism is the future.”

A said, I don’t like philosophical novels myself except I like Bertrand Russell who said philosophy is mostly bull in “Unpopular Essays.”

C said, “But Britain had a great legacy with the first modern democracy...”

And C added, “But when I think about the UK I think of Guinness beer and pubs. The English treated the Irish bad but now they drink their beer. I have some Irish ancestry.

C loved the ease of communicating so easily here. And she made love with a couple of buskers who played guitar.

Of course Britain was known for its music, rock music. But C said, “Canadian rock was better. 1970s Bands like Rush, Triumph, Max Webster, Neil Young, the Guess Who, Joni Mitchell and so many others.”

But said our busker most Canadian bands like others in the world came out with bad albums in the later stages of their career.

And our busker said, He felt he was like the pied piper. He was from Mexico originally.”

A said, “One musician offered me love and marriage but I hate the idea of marriage that he suggested, so I left. But then I met a struggling actor and all was lovely.”

C said, “No open marriages or any kind of marriage for me.”

And C said, “Musicians are most famous people in Britain other than the late Princess Di, I guess.

And of course soccer heroes.

The UK is a land of heroes, like most other countries.

IRELAND

Population: 4.6 million.

Capital: Dublin, population 550 000.

Lovely island, suddenly very rich these days.

Spent all our time in Dublin

Guinness brewery- cheap only allowing 2 glasses on tour of the brewery.

When in France and Spain we had toured wineries and got drunk for free.

A stayed behind the Irish whisky tour and had 8 bonus shots.

A said, “The music is good here too. Off the top of my head there were a number of music bands such as The Cranberries, Van Morrison and U2...”

“Still not nearly as good as Canadian rock,” said C.

A said, “With regard to literature Joyce is hard to get through. His writings have no value...”

“Oscar Wilde is better,” said C

C added, “Better also were Swift’s “Gulliver’s Travels.”

And Bram Stoker’s, ““Dracula’ ended up famously”

Ire=anger. Fighting. Many famous boxers are Irish... And they have only recently made a truce in Northern Island...

But during the potato famine, the English did little to help.

Ireland was poor for centuries. Only now they are coming out of it.

Independence from England at first did not help the Irish, but now it is growing fast and is the fifth richest place in Europe...

A said, "Unlimited love is our object; forget the past."

C said, "Yes but there are so many greedy people around. You have got to watch yourself. And many selfish people can ruin your life if you let them..."

Later...

C said, "I met a man who gave me a $40 000 diamond. And then he left me... So I cashed it in."

A said, "I loved a few men here. Very nice. They were all struggling poets in their 20s. I told them to persevere and that as you grow wiser you can write better poetry."

And A said, "Trial and error just like in science is the way to be a poet."

C said, "Everything is trial and error, just as you say. Nothing ventured, nothing gained."

DENMARK, March 21, 2022

Population: 5.6 million

Capital: Copenhagen 1.2 million

Famous was Hans Christian Andersen who wrote some great fables but also many bad ones.

Once it was a Viking country but now it is a very civilized peaceful place. Some say all the criminals have left hundreds of years ago...

One day we tried sex while skydiving... with two young Danish men. It was very cold up there in the winds.

People here ate a lot of dairy products and danishes of course. The beer was good too. Carlsberg, Tuborg are both famous.

Greenland is basically autonomous... But still not an independent country we said. So it was not included in our world survey.

We fell into conversation with a Danish woman who urged us not to use the birth control pill. "It was too dangerous," she said...

The Danish woman said, "All love is good. Every love can be like a dream."

But C said, "I met a narcissistic man who loved himself and forgot about me..." He said, "Women these days are greedy. And he said broken hearts are everywhere, a couple of his ex loves tried to kill themselves when he broke up, but he knew they were just trying to show their displeasure, not actually kill themselves."

“Nicest country in Europe...” Some said.

“It is good loving here,” said C.

A said “I love blond men. It is a turn on...”

C said, “Variety is of the essence when it comes to love. Everyone knows that.”

A replied, “If you were truly open-minded you would be able to love all men.”

SWEDEN

Population: 9.5 million

Capital: Stockholm: 1.4 million

Weather; it was the beginning of spring and the air was fresh.

Alfred Nobel invented dynamite and the felt guilty and so set up the Nobel prize.

But Sweden, though it is now known for peace has spent too much money and now they are a socialist and virtually bankrupted state. E.g. prison rooms are like 3 star hotels...

Of course here are blondes, beautiful women and men.

A found a blind man who was almost totally blind to love; she said he was a pretty good lover and enjoyed talking to him.

C found a man who was a big drinker and party man, but had a soft spot for loving.

A said, “These Scandanavians are crazy when they are drunk...”

C said, “They are a hardy, wild people, that’s for sure.

NORWAY

Population: 5 million

Capital Oslo 600 000

Rich country with oil and a small population. Fifth largest richest country in the world.

C said, “Ibsen they say he’s good but he’s not.”

“People here drink like Vikings... The Vikings are still here only they follow the laws,” said A.

A said to her lover, “You are blonde, like the sun, for me you are not the only one, I still have five more days.”

C asked several men, “How do you feel about nymphomaniacs?”

Basically a lot of men wanted to see such a woman. So A loved a number of men here in Norway... And so did C. It was a wild drunken time...

A said "Sometimes I just want to scream, like Edward Munch's painting."

Our friends said, "That is how it is, scream and shout about this world."

One friend asked, "How would you describe pick up bars...?"

A said, "Passionate men while drunk can be great masculine lovers. Women are just like animals who come to the pool to drink... Where the crocodiles wait for them."

Wild men like Vikings... greedy as can be...

C said, "I like wild men. And the spirit of the Vikings lives on."

A answered, "We need a tougher society."

C said, "The new barbarian. A wild but non violent man."

FINLAND

Population: 5.5 million

Capital: Helsinki 0.7 million

A: "I asked a rich man about diamonds and pearls..."

He told me "To get lost..."

But then he took me north to see the reindeer....

Most people here speak English...

Wild drunks just like in Sweden..

Saunas are popular here.

A said, "The men are so strong and masculine... I met a hockey player who was in great shape and had an endless sex drive. It was great spending two days with him."

Meet lovers in all sorts of places...

Many people here asked about our globe shaker and we sold 100s for $1000 each. And 1000s bought our 195 ring... Which was pretty much par for the course. We were like an unstoppable juggernaut...

ICELAND

Population: 325 000

Capital: Reykjavik, 125 000

C said , "A friend told me an interesting story here in which while drunk and driving he told his girl to strip while they drove down the street and they ended up going the wrong way down a one way street, and the police stopped them. So he fled the country.

A said taxis are readily available, no need to drive when pissed.

C said the loving is good in Iceland...She loved a poet here... who was very young...

And of course there was the Bobby Fischer chess player from America. At one time he was the best chess player in the world and he liked Iceland more than any other country during the cold war. Iceland was a neutral country.

Airfare is expensive to Iceland. This is the problem it is so isolated and so would-be partiers go elsewhere.

Many people here were educated to be skilled in poetry...

Bjork was a famous musician from here. Probably the most famous.

A said, "I talked with one scientist. He told me he wanted love on the moon but he would settle for me as a terrestrial lover with the bleak poison gasses emanating here from the depths of the Earth."

C said, "I think the people here are very attractive... Maybe the best we've seen. I loved an engineer who was very attractive and blond."

"But a small population," A was saying, "If two attractive people breed almost certainly their offspring will be beautiful and by the same token, plain people breeding with plain people will usually produce plain children."

And A said, "Why is that?"

A said she "Hung out with a geologist who spoke about the saunas and deep warm pools. And volcanoes."

And A said, "We swam in a number of pools, and the geology of it all was interesting."

POLAND

Population: 40 million

Capital: Warsaw, 1.6 million

C said, “Copernicus who was the first to prove the Earth went around the sun. But he had to publish posthumously as the powers that be couldn’t accept it.”

And C was talking about Stanislaw Lem, the sci-fi writer was a great Pole. “Solaris” and others... Dreamy... Underrated writer...

Communist architecture in communist Warsaw vs. old architecture in Krakow. Quite a shocking contrast.

Here we joined speed dating. Two hours and meet 120 men for two minutes each.

Language problem but we both found love. Ephemeral love.

There was a guy selling jewelry wanted to join us. He was a free spirit but he bored us so we didn’t include him on our plane. But we licensed him to sell 196 rings and also globe shakers world wide... And he turned out to be a savvy businessman. So we were later to put him in charge of the whole franchise.

A said to C, “Sometimes you make love to someone you don’t like.”

C said, “Often. But the Poles are eager to please us. They love us in fact. It is really turning out to be one firecracker of world tour.”

A said, speed dating online is the future. “One day soon people will fly all over the place looking to hook up with their lovers. Tour the world and love as many people as you possibly can...”

Poland is a country that is not influential in the past, but can look forward to a Renaissance on its own in the future.

ESTONIA

Population: 1.4 million

Capital: Tallinn, population 450 000

Reporters were on to us, and we were getting famous for our round the world trip with many envious people who wish they could do the same.

A said, “In the fledgling jet set here, freedom is what they most wanted...”

They claimed they were “sick” of lovers putting them in a cage and wanted out of it, one way or another.

C said, “It is true though that lovers imprison one another. It is so backwards, this concept.”

We quickly grew tired of Estonia even though we met the best people our friends could find...

We were like princesses to them... And we each loved one of them.

The best people told us they would all like to emigrate... But A said, “You will leave your home country and leave it as a basket case.”

A said, “You got to fight for your rights... There is a lot of opportunity here now.

LATVIA

Population: 2.3 million

Capital: Riga, 0.8 million

So we had a party in the hotel...

A number of admirers...

Some said we dumped our lovers too quickly... They didn't understand...

We told them we didn't like dominating men, and instead wanted to meet free spirits...

C said, “Do you think, generally speaking that nice girls finish last, more or less...?”

A said, “Absolutely.”

We had more than enough vodka anyway in this country.

A met a drunken poet who regaled her with local stories of the county. But he was a rhyming poet who was having difficulty making end's meet.

C met a Russian resident who was a “wild man,” she said. And he tried to hypnotize her as if he were Rasputin himself.

LITHUANIA

Population: 3.5 million

Capital: Vilnius, 600 000

A met and loved an artist here and said, “How do you feel about soul mates?”

He said, “Love and life are fleeting. I wouldn’t want to go to the West.”

And he said, “There is no perfect lover... only illusions.”

A asked him, “Is it OK to be better looking than your lover?”

He said, “All love is good; and if she is not that good looking she will love you more.”

A said, “Here is a small country where you (C) and I can be princesses...”

Big fish in a small sea.

C said, “I’d rather be a big fish in a big sea.

And C loved a harmonica player who had a lot of “energy.”

RUSSIA

Population 142 million

Capital: Moscow, 9 million

C said, I like Lermontov the writer who was killed in a duel at a young age.

A said I like Dostoevsky, particularly “Notes from Underground. Also Turgenev’s many books.

C said, “Solzhenisyn” though was the best in making changes to Russia, helping to bring down the communist state.

A said “The Kremlin is grim and so is the rest of the country.”

C said, “I would have liked to have made love to Rasputin...”

And there were powerful dictators here like Catherine the Great, Ivan the Terrible and Joseph Stalin. These great dictators were not in the least concerned with their people. Grim country.

Every year many homeless drunk on vodka fall down into snowbanks and die. They find their dead bodies in spring...

Life expectancy plummeting to well less than 60...with AIDS and cirrhosis and such.

We dressed like a Russian, to avoid troubles with the locals and police.

But in any case we just partied at our hotel.

We heard rumors of problems in the so-called, “Wild East.” No time to visit the Wild East way off 1000s of km from Moscow... Crime everywhere there people said.

We met a “Liberated woman,” who said one day soon women will be better educated and richer than men. In addition, they will be peaceful and bring peace to government.

She said, “Life is one inspiration after another.” She was a painter... Of mad scenes...”

C said she met some heroin addicts and partied with them. But she was too afraid to take heroin. But she loved one of them...

A met an ecstasy peddler but she refused to dance. She said she wanted conversation... But finally they got a room and made sweet love.

The paparazzi were on our tail though and printed our faces with our lovers on the front page of their magazines.

But we walked around, if we walked around, at night wearing sunglasses and wigs.

Of course C insisted on seeing the Kremlin. But it all went smoothly. She was dressed in tatters. And being blonde a number of people thought she was Russian.

A said, “There was a wild edge to this Russia.”

BELARUS

Population: 10 million

Capital: Minsk, 1.8 million

Both found love here. In both cases just ordinary men. But good men. Both men had very little experience dealing with foreigners and it was amusing how they treated us; like queens. But A wanted one man and couldn't get him.

A said, "What are your feelings about platonic love?"

C replied, "I hate it. It seems a waste to not have fun while you can have fun..."

And A said, "Is there any limit to love?"

C said, "In the future all women will do plastic surgery and every woman will be attractive. This is what future love will be about."

And A said, there will be fewer and fewer children and the population will shrink here in Belarus and with all the drug addicts and alcoholics there are here..."

We were very welcome here. Off the beaten track. And though it was somewhat grim, we liked it.

UKRAINE

Population: 47 million

Kiev: 2.7 million

C said, “It sticks in my mind reading about a Chernobyl party with Russian VIPS about 10 years ago, dancing on top of the now defunct Chernobyl reactor.”

A said, “As a result of the meltdown, many children here are weak,”

So C asked a local, “What is the future of love? In a ugly life situation?”

He said, “Love is dead. And apocalypse is near”

A said, “Don’t you have a sex fantasy?”

He said, “You are my dream right now.”

A said, “So we did it.”

C said, “Cabbage rolls; I ate them until I was sick of them.”

Some said Ukraine was a country of the future with 50 million people like Spain, Italy or France approximately.

The Viktor Yushenko poisoning was a bizarre move which resulted in him gaining popularity and winning the Presidentship.

A said “Politics is crazy and dangerous even.”

C said, “I met a dissident who thought “most people in Ukraine are screwed up” and it is difficult to find good friends... I loved him passionately.”

And C said, “We smoked a cigar together, my friend and I and reminisced about our experiences. C said, “I am embarrassed my life is so empty and lacking in adventure.

But the dissident man said, “The sky is the limit. Any dream can be amazing...”

CZECH REPUBLIC

Population: 10.7 million

Capital: Prague, 1.3 million

So we had our own “Prague summer.”

A said “They invented pilsner beer here, my favorite.”

The idea of Bohemia attracted a lot of Americans...

Teaching English to support themselves...

Most parts of the Czech Republic’s architecture survived the war

Kafka was the most famous writer here

And many people like Kundera’s books which he mostly wrote in exile in France.

One guy told A “My whole life was wasted, under communism.”

A asked him why and he said, “He hadn’t a nice car or a nice house basically.”

Indeed the communist dictatorship was so bad everyone wanted to end it...
But most were angry about the lack of food and goods under communism.

Famous was the “velvet revolution” of Havel, where no one got hurt. It was very well done by Havel...

C said I find Slavic people to be very exotic.

A said, yes they are certainly different with a lot of blondes...

C met a blonde who was a fledgling writer. He was only 27. C told him not to give up and that writing is a craft which you constantly improve.

C said, "The key is not to give up. All good things need time..."

And C said, "One day there will be more love/sex."

A responded, "Many people give up too easily. To be a writer you have to persevere.

And A interjected, "I met an architect who believed in transforming the Czech Republic into an avant garde type of country.

It is Bohemia, they told everyone.

SLOVAKIA, June 21, 2022

Population: 5.6 million

Capital: Bratislava, 440 000

Bratislava is an attractive city...

Separated from Czech Republic...

A man said, “Why travel when you can just stay in NYC and have unending fun...”

A said, “You don’t look for romance here?”

He said, “No, I am too big a fish here.”

A said, “You don’t believe in love?”

He said, “Maybe for the Curies or in Shakespeare... but such love is extremely rare.”

And he added, “Still it is an inspiration to think it is possible.”

A met a fantasy artist/poet who combined brilliant poems with art. It was quite dreamy... So A loved him.”

C met and loved a bartender in a posh club who said he’d traveled the world but now had come back to Slovakia.

C said to him, “I wish you luck.”

SLOVENIA

Population: 2.3 million

Capital: Ljubljana, 300 000

No skiing as it was summer but we did some trekking..

More and more like the rest of Europe. A small country can develop quickly.

A talked with a local musician about successful marriages. A said, “You are telling me that you have been in love with your wife for 20 years?”

He said, “Maybe it is anathema to the younger generation, but for my generation, marriage can be happy.”

A said, “You are not in love even with sex symbols?”

He said, “In life you have to be satisfied with less.”

A wanted him, but he remained true to his wife.

So A hooked up with a self-proclaimed crazy man. He had spent some time in the asylum after his girlfriend drove him crazy. He said, “I can’t believe I am meeting a person like you here...”

C met a local talented skier. He had unusual muscles in bed...

HUNGARY

Population: 10.5 million

Capital: Budapest. 1.8 million

Hungary features the largest concentrations of gypsies in the world. Basically the gypsies have a bad reputation.

We ate the goulash of course prepared by our own chef which was good as always... He always tried to produce local dishes in an expert way.

But one day when C was alone an intruder entered the hotel room and robbed her of some jewelry at knife point.

Our bodyguards had failed us, so we fired 4 and hired 4 new ones using our Internet chat rooms, so the new guards were multi-ethnic.

C said, "I met a very young man, only 18 and I asked him, How do you feel about dating someone much older than you?"

He said, "Some women age well, others don't. But plastic surgery is available to all... Better in the West..."

And he rebuffed C and wouldn't love her. She was "too old," he said.

C said to A, "How do you solve unrequited love?"

A said, "In the past it was tormenting, but now if the man is not interested I leave immediately. But if they don't love you yet claim to want to know you then drop them for heaven's sakes. Don't fall into the obsession trap..."

And A said, "A man here told me behind every great man is a great woman... And he wanted me to be that woman."

And A said, "I told him to 'get lost.' And I loved another young student..."

We met an ambassador woman here. A said "Don't wait for the man to make the first move. Be a liberated woman."

"That's wise," said C.

AUSTRIA

Population: 8.5 million

Capital, Vienna, 2.0 million

Old buildings, mostly undamaged by World War II...

A little known fact was that Hitler was from here, but many Austrians think their country is better than Germany.

Another fact was the chin of the Hapsburg royals was extended due to generations of incest. But they didn't show the chin in portraits. The Hapsburgs ruled for some time.

Also Freud is from here.

C said, "How do you feel about dating a shrink?"

A said, "Many psychiatrists and psychologists have mental problems of their own."

"And," A said, "In fact everyone has mental problems these days. Even wild animals drive each other crazy in the zoo and the wild."

C said, "I met a man who seemed the total opposite of me and I liked him. So it can be true that opposites attract..."

A said, "Yes I believe you can learn from anyone...."

A said, "But it is important to be open-minded with different people."

C said, “Maybe if they cure AIDS there will be a new sex revolution. But as for now there is still plenty of love to go around,” I think.

A said, “But Freud said all dreams are about sex.”

C said, “I would say the best dreams are about sex.”

A said, “Just don’t let anyone hypnotize you or you will be sorry.”

C said, “What about hypnotism?”

A said, “Hypnotism is very powerful and can change people through post hypnotic suggestion. The subconscious is very powerful.”

ITALY

Population: 60 million

Capital: Rome, 3.9 million

Food and wine, Italian food is very famous...

C said, “Italy was a leader of world culture in Ancient Rome and then again during the Renaissance; but not the modern day, I wonder why,” she said.

A said, “I heard they used to flood the Colosseum with sea water and have sharks and then have 4 boats of men each mutually opposed to one another.

C said, Did you hear the one about the Mona Lisa man? He changed his sex and then got a number of plastic surgeries to look like the Mona Lisa.

A said, “Davinci and his corpse ground-breaking autopsies are well known...And he claimed to sleep only 2 hours a day, i.e. 4 times ½ hour walks a day.”

C said, Michalangelo was pretty good also.

C said “I made sweet love with a gigolo. He gave me a free one. One of the best lovers I have ever had. Have to keep in touch with him.

A said, “Why don’t they legalize sex workers so they can get the gangs out and check the sex workers for AIDS.

C said, “All the same all that sex and drugs wouldn’t be a bad way to live.”

A said, “I met a physically strong lover. He had a muscular, large body. It was a good feeling.”

C said, “Strong men are good.

And of course C had lots of sights to see of ancient Rome and went around Italy to see Renaissance art and architecture.

A said, “Tell me again, why don’t you just read about the past in a book?”

C said, “It is different to see for yourself. Just like reading about love is not the same as love.

SAN MARINO

Capital: San Marino city

Here they had the 5th longest lifespan, and 10th richest country in the world by some accounts...

A said, "I met one of the richest guys in the country and made sweet love."

C said, "There don't seem to be any really cultured men here. So I made it with a wine producer. I have never been so drunk in my life."

A said, "But to think we can go and get laid in every country suggests we live in a great age."

C said, "But you will have sex even if you don't love them. I need soul mates and there are plenty of them."

VATICAN

Population: 1 000

St. Peter's square is the famous landmark for the Pope to talk to the crowd of tourists.

The pope is said to be infallible by the Catholic Church.

Sex scandals: no lovers allowed to its priests, gay or otherwise... Old men from Europe are always pope.

Everyone is leaving the church in droves, but the clergy don't seem to be paying attention. "Guide the future by the past."

A and C both met Vatican clerks and made love with them. We told them not to confess to the Pope.

"They were hot," said A... They both been born here and were citizens of the Vatican so we are qualifying it as scoring. After all can't make love to gay clergy."

MALTA

Population: 425 000

Capital Valletta, 6500

C went to see some megalithic temples here dating back as far as 3600 B.C.

Beaches are popular here with Germans and Scandanavian tourists on holidays...

A said, "I met and loved a local poet, who wrote a poem for me:"

Poem for the Light

Your voice is hypnotic,
Your face, a charm
We could make love instantly
If we could

But you are an unreachable star
A brilliant light to lead us

C said, "Not very good; but it could be worse. Anyway all poets are good lovers."

C for her part loved a hotel owner who wined and dined her for several days and had great love.

CROATIA

Population: 4.5 million

Capital: Zagreb, 1 million

90% Croat

Beaches of the Dalmatian coast are popular with tourists mainly in the summer. For us now it was late summer so we got a nice tan for the Fall.

Met some ultra-slim models. We asked them why they wanted to be so thin and half-starve yourself or live on heroin.

A said they were stick figures, preferred by gay designers... C said, "I would never wear the fashions they try to come up with these days. They are shapeless. Not for full-figured women like us..."

A said, "In any case, fashion hasn't changed much since blue jeans became popular 40 years ago..."

C loved a man who was openly bisexual, and she said, "It was good loving."

And we were invited to a church wedding. A said, "No way am I going to a church." But C said, "I'll go and meet you at the reception."

The reception was a kind of wild party where we both found a suitable man and went to a beach house...

A said, "We should really set up a Sex Olympics." She told this to the paparazzi to drum up support for our cause. Donations were pouring in and applications to join our exclusive club were also skyrocketing."

C said, "No secret admirers here... It is more and more out in the open."

BOSNIA

Population: 3.8 million

Capital: Sarajevo, 1.2 million

Carnage of civil war in Europe in this day and age is hard to believe; virtual genocide...in this Olympic city of Sarajevo.

But we were welcomed by several of our club members and they took us to a party in Sarajevo...

C scored an artist who was bent on painting destruction and woe.

A met a local lawyer man who had only 1 leg, but she was entranced and loved him... He had traveled all over the world.

But C was dumped after a one night stand and she said, "I can't win all the time..."

A said, "You and I both are reckless in love. There are bound to be setbacks. Kind of spirit of desperation in this place. But as always it is a "numbers game." The more men we meet the better the chance of finding good love.

C said, "But I have broke up with so many men already on this trip, it's kind of painful."

A said, "Love often hurts but that's all part of the game."

"Pain and happiness go together," said A.

SERBIA

Population: 7.5 million

Capital: Belgrade, 1.8 million

Kind of a bad reputation in the area

But few tourists so we had our pick of English speaking scholars.

A met and loved a professor of biogenetics and was entranced. He said, "There will be numerous breakthroughs leading to eternal youth in the future." "I want to live forever," said A

C met and loved a student of history. He said in history there was one war crime after another. It doesn't auger well for the future that genocide could happen in this day and age. World War II only ended 65 years ago

"World War III will come one day," he said. But there will be survivors and the human race will continue on."

MONTENEGRO

Population: 640 000

Capital, Podgorica, 14 000

A said, "The film "Montenegro" was a weird film..."

C said, "One guy told me, "Let's break the ice," so he took the ice from his drink and smashed them on the bar. He was kicked out soon after and I went with him for a couple days of hot sex.

A remarked, “Tiny country; here any intelligent person could be queen or king.”

A met and loved a prominent politician who argued “Small countries are better, just like the city states of the ancient Greeks...”

He said, “One day the whole world will be broken into villages of like-minded people...”

A said, “Anyway it is a new country. Who knows what the future might bring...?”

KOSOVO,

Population: 2.2 million

Capital: Pristina, 55 000

C said, “Do you feel life is like living in a dense fog? You can’t see behind you or around you...”

A replied, “The key is not to go too fast. But we are going too fast. We could be headed for a fall.”

Anyway they were eager to meet us, all 4 men from the club. So we had them organize eloquent banquets in our honor (no paparazzi allowed). And they invited their friends. But the tabloid photographers were there with their secret cameras all the same.

A loved a prominent politician. He told her, “It is pleasant to live in a small city. No pollution, no noise, no crime, no crowds and healthy food... And you can meet anyone you want on the Net.”

C loved a guitarist in a band. He said the band was good but it was hard to get exposure. The band was thinking of moving to L.A.

C listened to some of their music and said, “Not bad; maybe you have potential. Go with your dreams.”

ALBANIA, September 21, 2022

Population: 3.2 million

Capital: Tirana, 760 000

Backwards still

Still not a full fledged member of the EU...

Kosovo features Albanians mainly (the ancient Illyrians...)

Undiscovered beaches here; maybe not so clean, but off the beaten track...

A said, “In my view they need a PR campaign to attract tourists.”

C said I met a doctor. He was very interested in my home of Canada. And “We hit it off just like that.”

A said, “I dated a farmer who couldn’t get off the land. It was crude but passion. But he had the devil inside and our adventures were insane. For example he insisted in walking naked in the streets in broad daylight and shouting obscenities at passersby.”

A said, “A woman has to be careful how she chooses men, but we have only 1 week in each country and sometimes we are fooled.”

C said, “These days many countries are ruled by devils much to the chagrin of their populace...”

GREECE

Population: 11.5 million

Capital: Athens, 3.3 million

Cloudless in summer, of course.

A said, “What happened to the Greeks?”

C said, “In ancient times the Greeks were known for democracy, high art, writers, scientists and so on. They gave us the Olympics and they gave us Plato. In Plato the Greeks argued more people should be thinkers...”

A added, “But they also continually made war on each other and others around them.”

And C said, “And the Greeks were also prosperous in the Middle Ages under the Byzantine Greek rulers...”

And C added, “In ancient times the Greeks colonized south Italy and many other places but now many Greeks have gone elsewhere, for example, Australia.”

... But where is the art, where is the culture? Now it is a relatively backwards place...

A said, “Now our idea of a politician is a person who doesn’t do much.”

A said, “I met a man who turned me on and told me many of his clever friends migrated elsewhere, and he expounded on the virtues of truth in wine. So I got drunk with him and loved him and it was ‘classic Greece.’”

C thought it is very important to be able to hold your alcohol, often drinking men under the table and loving them... C met an alcoholic poet, who claimed he would single-handedly revive the arts in Greece.

Truth in wine.

MACEDONIA

Population: 2.1 million

Capital: Skopje, 485 000

The great Alexander was from here (but tutored by Greeks). And the Greek and Macedonian troops conquered much of the known world.

But now, unemployment is 30 % in this problematic country. A lot of people live with their parents or parents-in-law while married.

Anyway a handful of our club members set us up with a long string of parties... They were happy to see us and the paparazzi were there... And we were starting to become very famous.

C said, “ I met a man, his name was Alexander, and he was interested in sex toys.”

C said, I prefer natural wild sex, but I gave it a try...

And A said, “I heard about a sex suit that makes a woman come and come, but the problem is it makes regular sex boring.

C said, “He whipped me and sodomized me, and it wasn’t so good.

A said, “You get what you deserve. Ha ha.

A said, “I met a man and enslaved him for a week. We had good dinners and romantic nights. He did my bidding.”

C said, “Well that’s slavery.”

A said, "I asked a man to tattoo me on my back. He tattooed a heart with knives in it..."

C said, "Why did you do that?"

A said, "I want to show men that I am a rebel... Anyway tattoos are like smoking; they are addictive."

A said, "Hard to find a cultured man here. But I met a man who fell completely in love with me, so I did him."

C said, "Getting laid on this trip is too easy and we are too spoiled."

ROMANIA

Locals here said Bucharest was once the Paris of the East, and would be again.

A said "I met an interesting man. But he told no truths. In fact he laughed at the truth and loved me anyway."

A said, "I seem to attract intelligent men.

C said, "Me too; but you wonder if you are really meeting the best. Maybe we need more paparazzi to attract people to us. On the other hand maybe we are too mainstream now and not intellectual enough."

A said one guy, claimed "He's never had such love before..."

And A added, "I think we do good work. And I loved him."

MOLDOVA

Population: 3.7 million

Capital: Chisinau, 700 000

It is a new country, way off the beaten track. But it is backwards and grim...

C said, "I met a man who told me love is like eating. It doesn't matter unless you don't have it." So she loved him.

A said, "Of course love is paramount."

C said, "What is worse to be crazy or to be lonely?"

A said, "Of course it is better to be crazy. I am surprised you asked that..."

C said, "It is hard to meet an imaginative, crazy man, but this man I met here was full of imagination. He played guitar and claimed he had made a love song for me."

A said, "I am envious. But I met a student who was trying to get a scholarship so he could get out of Moldova. After I loved him he said, 'You have totally convinced me to go to America, one way or another.'"

XX
ASIA
XX

TURKEY

Population: 75 million

Capital Ankara, population 3.9 million

Principal city: Istanbul, 12.8 million

Men of course spent a lot of time in coffee shops, strong Turkish coffee. Hashish was not widely available. One needed to be careful you don't end up like that guy in "Midnight Express" who was caught with drugs in Turkey.

Food was kebabs etc.

It was mostly for men in the coffee shops. Strong coffee.

The Turks believed women who prepare coffee well make a good mate. And they had hookah pipes of course for smoking tobacco.

Popular here were public baths for men and women separately of course.

One tourist at the airport told us he stayed in a treehouse hotel so as not to damage the ancient ruins by building on them in one area of the country in Olympos Bayrams... There were Greek and Byzantine ruins all over the country for C to visit...

Men here want to sample Western women... Who they think are promiscuous and they are compared to Turkish women. But Turkish women's status is improving. A lot own businesses now.

It was more secular than some other Muslim states. People and society were becoming more open.

A couple of men wanted a US green card from A and offered her large amounts of money to marry them, but of course she declined...

Women are not so free here, but we met two gentleman who showed us the wonders of Turkey and it was fine...

A said, "In all seriousness my lover asked me, "Does love really exists or is it just instinctual and backwards?"

A said, "Boy you have got a lot to learn. You can call any romance love if you want to."

C said, "My lover wanted to know if there were a lot of people like me in Canada. I said, "Not really. But it depends what kind of people you want to meet.

He said, "I mean clever like you are." And I said, "There are good people everywhere, but I am far more clever than most."

CYPRUS

Population: 900 000

Capital: Nicosia, 270 000 (on the Greek side)

We went to the larger Greek side of this divided land.

C visited a lot of archaeology sites and was quite impressed, especially by the Neolithic ruins (stone age circa 5000-7000 BC)

One night we were at the club we'd rented and one night C was depressed and drank a whole 26 oz bottle of brandy. The next day she wondered why and swore to give up alcohol. But a few days later she was at it again.

We got invited to a Greek wedding... It went on for five nights.

During the day we frequented nude beaches

However the level of English was not so good

The ancients called it the birthplace of Aphrodite, so it was the Island of Love, but we couldn't speak with very many local English speakers.

C said, "I met a man who asked why do women love romance much more than men?"

A said, "Romance is kind of a new concept in the history of the world. Romance is a thing of the future. Previously most marriages were arranged in most countries."

C said, "I can't believe you just said that."

A said, "Now women expect to be romanced always and when it gets boring for them they dump the guy."

C said, "These days we are all entertainers."

SYRIA

Syria, population: 23 million

Damascus, capital. Population 1.8 million

We brought our own alcohol and paid a duty on it.

Secret rendez-vous to find lovers

We wanted the most educated people in a long line of secret Middle East suitors...

I met a man, he asked me about Marilyn Monroe. He said so many sex symbols in the West but few are full figured women...

So we both found secret love which was arranged by our friends. People didn't dare wear our 195 ring or buy our globe shaker since the government considered us "too promiscuous."

Afterwards A said, "I am totally addicted to sex and without it I would be lost. Our lovers here were not too bad."

C was talking about Assyria and glorious past of this area including Syria.

C said, "Those Assyrians were the cruelest civilization in the past. And Palmyra's Roman period ruins were relatively well preserved."

And C said, "Queen Zenobia of Palmyra dared to organize a revolt and war against Rome but she was defeated and forced to march down the streets of Rome as a prisoner during a Roman triumph."

C said, "It just goes to show you that a tough woman can be a strong leader."

A said, "I met an open-minded Syrian man who showed me the country... Mostly we just had sex as he had a very strong sex drive."

C said, "I met a cool local archaeologist and we visited many ancient sites together. It was very romantic but also a reminder that great civilizations can fall and disappear."

A said, "I would like to be a powerful Queen. Maybe run for election in some poor country and turn its fortunes around using our team of friends from all over the world. You can refer to me henceforth as "Queen A."

JORDAN

Population: 6 million

Amman, the capital still a lot of Palestinians living here, population 2 million

C wanted to see the ancient ruins of the Nabateans, who carved temples in to the rock.

They were selling Holy water from the river Jordan

A said, "The river is dirty."

A said, "I met a man who told me I was not good enough for his love and also that I was too promiscuous. Why do people always put their standards too high?"

A said, "I had the illusion that he wanted to sleep with me but I was mistaken. Hard to believe he didn't want me. Nearly every man does."

C said "What other illusions have you have experienced?"

A said, "I took magic mushrooms one time and I saw the devil and demons."

And C said, "Life is largely illusion, but people convince themselves it all makes sense..."

A said, "To me it makes sense, it is just crazy, is all."

But we joined the Jordanian elite in a large feast.

It was good.

We both discreetly each got a man to come to our hotel.

They were just one night stands... Just pure sex...

LEBANON

Popuation: 4.2 million

Capital, Beirut, 1.3 million

New opportunity in the Middle East, these days.

About 40% Christian and 60% Muslim. Christians are more open and enlightened.

C went to Baalbek and Tyre and Sidon; all famous ruins. Of course the ancient Phoenicians who lived here invented the phonetic alphabet.

C said, "I met a lover who had a big heart and I fell for him. He was truly kind and considerate."

A said, "I found a wild dancing man, and I loved him too, despite the fact I hate dancing...?"

Parties especially with the Christians...

A said, "How do you feel about a partner who is not very talkative?"

C said, "It sucks. If people don't talk, then they are boring."

A said, "My wild dancing man had little to say and I grew so bored."

C said, "Some people are great lovers but can't keep up a conversation."

A replied, "Yes you can't have sex all day."

ISRAEL

Population: 7.8 million mixture of Jews in the majority and Arabs.

Jerusalem, divided capital, 850 000

Terrorism problems. West Bank buildings. Hot spot for violence.

Building in Palestinian territories is a recipe for disaster.

We went to a kibbutz...Many here said the Jews had had bad luck. Others said the kibbutzes were communist...

But, said A, the root of the problem was with the Christians who allowed only Jews to lend money. In the past. Now so many Jews are rich, especially in places like NYC.

The Jews are like the gays, they feel like fish out of water and go on to have many successes.

A said, "I've had a lot of lovers, but I don't take them serious however."

C said, "I asked a local Jew, if he believes in love or not?"

A said, "And were you in love?"

C said, "Any love is good as you and I keep saying..."

A said, "Do you have a truly open-mind?"

C said, "I enjoy to meet men who will easily break up with me..."

A said, "True love is always a good subject..."

C said, "Do you like to reminisce about loves?"

A said, “In all honesty it is great to reminisce about past loves. But best to fly by night and leave them happy.”

C said, “I know you don’t believe in love.”

A said, “Love is largely illusion any way. No need to get upset with one small love affair when there are millions of suitable men out there.”

PALESTINE/GAZA

Since Gaza is self-governing it was a stop for us...

Gaza, population 420 000

Population of all Palestine 4 million

Ramallah 30 0000 the de facto capital of Palestine

So we went to Gaza.

A met a man who wanted a green card. He claimed to be rich...

Miserable existence for most here. Should make peace for everyone's benefit. They lack charismatic, peaceful leaders.

Of course here they thought Western women are loose...

And we are, relatively speaking.

C met another archaeologist, A met a baker. It was all good.

The baker said, "The Israelis kept the Palestinians down. He couldn't afford an education and his English was not good enough, he figured."

Of course there was a long history of Christianity and Jews and Islam here. Love God and hate others who are different for you. Kill people in the name of God. God's chosen people or whatever...

C said, "It was all madness."

In any case we observed a lot of poverty here to go together with a lack of education.

So much hatred for each other when they were the same people thousands of years ago, and they branched off from the one group to two groups.

IRAQ, December 21, 2022

Population: 31 million

Capital Baghdad, 7 million

The weather was nice.

“It is the birthplace of civilization,” some say

The country featured the Epic of Gilgamesh a story of immortality and the oldest book in the world. Now people are seriously considering the prospect of immortality. It is an old dream.

C said, “Now, in Iraq, it is a dangerous opportunity.”

Friends of friends showed up in a great hall. A few hundred of us.

C met a poet who read the Gilgamesh epic...

A met a top general but A said, “I quickly got bored of him however. It is difficult to keep relationships fresh. However he said, “The Iraq conflict will disappear when the NATO troops are pulled out.”

C said, “My poet was a genius and it was wonderful the time we spent together. I think he was the perfect lover.”

A said, “But to be honest his poetry, which you showed me, wasn’t much good.”

C said, “Iraq in any case is losing its best people due to immigration. The result will be another basket case of a country in the end for these once proud people. The US intervention though might at least bring peace to the land. Unlike what your friend, the general, says.”

KUWAIT

More secret rendez-vous. “Hide your love away,” just like the Beatle’s song.

Lots of oil here...

Rich and bored rich people, e.g. Sheiks

Rich sheiks thought Western women are all promiscuous, and for us two at least that stereotype was true.

The government was leery of us, so we announced it at the last minute and by the time police arrived we had already broken off into little groups and left.

Here you need to hide your love away.

C met a man who was too conservative to make love on the first date or the second date and finally the week was almost gone and she was shut out. All she had to show for it was a couple of pounds she gained at dinners with him. “How could I have been so foolish?” she said. So finally she met a nice man to love her. Just an ordinary man, but a very horny man.

A said, “I keep telling you, if you don’t get love right away, you should dump them immediately.”

A said, “I met a man, a rich man, who donated millions to our cause. No questions asked.”

We wanted to save most of it, but some we used to start schools in Africa... We now had almost 80 million in donations...

IRAN

Population: 73 million

Capital: Tehran, 8 million

A lot of people, the best people are leaving here too...Immigration... It's another brain drain.

No alcohol more or less. And we didn't like it. Not many wild parties to go to here.

Anyway C toured the ancient ruins of Persepolis...(sacked by Alexander of Macedonia).

Few hotels here. Most stay with friends when on business/traveling.

So we stayed at people's houses; friends of ours
Many lived with their whole family

And our friends here had set us up with a selection of 24 bachelors to choose from... They were eager to sample a Westerner...

So we both got secret lovers.

Many people here admired the West, some hated it... It was kind of dangerous for us.

C said, "Do you feel you are getting too much sex on this tour?"

A said, "I feel I am still years away from reaching my sex potential."

C said, "We are spoiled sex addicts. Imagine love in Iran."

A said, “What’s wrong with that?”

A said, “We are meeting the best people on Earth. No one has ever met more interesting lovers than us I think.”

C said, “Still I feel empty inside...”

A said, “Don’t worry, when this trip is over and done with you will be very famous and happy. Everyman will wish to love you.”

SAUDI ARABIA

Population 25 million including 6 million foreigners. Some question the figure and say there are less Saudis than the government claims...

Riyadh, capital, population, 5 million

Again a secret rendez-vous was the plan

Desert, nearly all desert

At the airport a guy told them Hitler was good, killing all those Jews.

And he said, “In Saudi Arabia we have too much money. Would you like some money?” We were both shocked as he left. Finally A asked him to stop but he was already leaving.

While stopping for gas a Saudi Prince picked up us in his limo. He claimed to be bored here and looked for some excitement. Our bodyguards and staff trailed behind in 3 cars.

The Prince gave us 10 million dollars to help with our cause. He said people need to be more open about love. Not much art here and he wanted to go to the USA one day...

But he said, "Most people are happy in their own culture of Saudi Arabia..."

He said, "People migrate here every year for the Hajj pilgrimage, millions of tourists every year. So crowded in Mecca."

But, he said, only 61 % attend the free schools..

And he said, "Oil-powered desalinization water plants allows growth of some agricultural products... The country is trying to diversify."

In any case, A loved a rich man and he set up C with another rich man. Such luxury, such bounty. But it was all hush-hush and all the paparazzi knew was that we were staying in a hotel with 8 bodyguards to attack paparazzi who went too far.

In any case...

C noted that "Beautiful looking men and women were of the upper class"

A said to her rich lover, "Here who is happier, the rich or the middle class?"

He said, "Of course the upper class; specifically the royal family and its several hundred people are the happiest."

C said "The lower middle class is not so large here. Well over 3 million live in poverty. There is a big gap between rich and poor. "I think the rich have more privileges, but many told me they are bored. Common people are busy living their lives, no time to ponder whether they are happy or not. Few parties with both men and women involved...”

“It was a boring place,” some local expatriates told us.

UAE

Population: 5 million

Dubai 1.4 million

Abu Dhabi, capital. 1 million.

We started in Dubai’s famous 7 star hotel; “Who needs seven stars?” remarked C.

A said, “The hotel has too much service, it gets to be a pain.”

At least that’s what we thought.

Here there are 3 men for every one woman in the city which is made up of 71% foreigners.

A asked C, “How should we act here?”

And we decided to wear a nondescript veil so as not to attract attention...

C said, “It is important to act like a lady, no matter what the culture is.”

A said, “Appear like a lady, but be a wild thing in bed.”

And A said, “But maybe a wild woman is surprising to people in Dubai...”

C said, “I am a wild woman when I drink...”

A said, “But you and I drink a lot and this tends to make us forgetful of our romances. Fortunately our two movie makers on staff catch all the dialog with one movie maker following each of us girls.”

C said, “They teach you in school about memorization of facts, but actually there is not so much that is necessary to learn. A simple life can be sublime.

Here A met a rich businessman who said he would donate fuel to the trip by paying 5 million dollars for jet fuel and the trip in general. We thanked him for his generous gift and A made love to him.

As for C, she met a journalist/writer who was limited to what he could say and his attempts to publish in the West were a total fiasco.

C felt sorry for him and gave him $50 000 to help him with his career...

BAHRAIN

Population: 0.8 million

Manama, the capital, 155 000

It was a tiny country in the Persian Gulf...

Oil and pearls, were the backbone of the economy.

Also it is a financial center for the Middle East.

But it also has heavy censorship of the Net especially.

We saw some beautiful women (without the veil), and we saw many attractive men as well.

A said, "It is a shame that they hide their beauties away in much of the Middle East."

C said, "Most beautiful women have power and they should use it to help the poor and uneducated, I say."

A said, "A truly clever, beautiful woman can do anything with her man and society too."

"I guess there's not so much AIDS disease here," said A

C said, "Nevertheless there is prostitution as usual. But it is all hush-hush."

A said, "I met a man who was a rich son of a banker. He took me all around and I loved him."

The banker said to A, "People like you are so free, you don't know how lucky you are..."

A said "At some point you have to fight for freedom, but a lot of people just leave for a freer country... Maybe you should try and pressure your government with protests. Gamble on the future..."

C said, “I loved an engineer. He was talented in making love and she loved every minute of it.

QATAR

Population: 1.3 million

Doha, the capital, 1 million

Mostly expatriates live here due in part to the vast oil production.

Richest country in Asia. $101 000 per capita.

No censorship here.

No paparazzi here. They would be kicked out of the kingdom.

We met a woman who liked Elvis’s hips while dancing...She said dancing is for philosophers. A said “What do you mean?” She replied, how you dance is how you make love. Philosophy is all about love, I think.”

A said, “Elvis was just a singer and didn’t write his good songs, and in any case he only had about 7 good songs. Just like Michael Jackson only Jackson wrote his hits.”

And A said, “You have experience. What is your biggest regret about love?”

C said, “I wish I had started this world tour sooner, but I need you, A, for support. As for illusions I have plenty, but that doesn’t stop me from doing what I want.”

C said, “Yes everyone needs support in making movies these days, but in the future of virtual reality, you will see one person made movies...”

A said, “But it is certainly refreshing though to be off the beaten track and meeting exotic men. Being rich, like all the men we met, changes people and makes them more confident.”

C said she met an amateur actor who told her of his troubles here. But he was eager to “jump into bed with C.”

And A met a man who was a banker. “He was so rich and treated me like a queen...” she said.

YEMEN

Population: 24 million

Sana’a 1.8 million and the capital

Recent civil war and numerous deaths. North vs. South Civil war

Nice architecture, though

Not much oil, and so not very rich

Our friend asked us, why not stay home in NYC and let people come to you?

A said, “It’s a good argument, but many great people do not make it to NYC. And anyway NYC is not perfect. It’s got a high crime rate for instance and not as many famous writers or musicians or artists come from NYC as people think. There are many poseurs.

C said, “In any case we chat online with our friends in NYC and elsewhere but some wanted to follow us and come to us, wherever we might be. We told them they could come but our first priority is making love to a local resident in each country. Exotica is a lot of it. But it is important. However the rules were to make love with local people only.”

However many people wanted to join our parties and have fun. Again and again...

And one of our friends asked, “How do you compare yourself with Marco Polo?”

A said, “Some people think Marco Polo was a fraud. After all he didn’t mention the Great Wall of China despite his supposed extensive journeys there.”

C said, “I think to travel the whole known world and then some was a great journey.”

A said, “Polo of course claimed Beijing had more whorehouses than any other place he’d seen. Love was like that in the 13th century.”

C said, “So there was love back even in the 13th century.”

C said, even in Yemen, we meet a lot of friends... Is there any limit to the soul mates we can find?”

A said, “Not really.”

C announced that she, “Loved several nice men, with dynamite cologne.”

A said, “I met a artist and he drew some nudes of me. I hope one day all who want can see them.”

C said, “You are crazy. But good crazy...”

OMAN

Population: 3 million

Muscat, the capital 650 000

Not much oil either here. A lot of desert. A lot of poverty...

C said, "I made love with a great man, a politician and when I told him I was leaving he cried."

A said, "Love can be bittersweet if you allow it; better to just have sex and not get too involved. Try to love everyone and you will love no one... But by the same token if you love everyone you will be happy."

And A said, "Men are like wild horses. Once you've trained them they are domesticated and boring. We are too famous now and many men want a piece of us."

A met a man who wanted to make love while on a camel. She took him up on the offer. It was a bumpy ride."

Few tourists came here and that was fine by us. We were sick of typical Western tourists who didn't want to meet anyone and just stay in their small clique.

TAJIKSTAN

Population 8 million

Dushanabe , 0.7 million is the capital. We stayed here.

As per usual our local friends set up parties where many of the prominent men and women of the country were there.

The women had colorful skirts; we each bought a couple.

The country is still recovering from civil war, and women don't have many rights.

C said to A, "What is the best thing you can do for your lovers?"

A said, "Leave them smiling as you leave them... provide them with some inspiration..."

C said, "I think the tradition of the Japanese Geisha girl was good."

A responded, "Such Geishas were very talented in the arts such as music, poetry and so on."

But here in Tajikstan women are not free to do as they wish.

A said, "Life should be a giant party, to my way of thinking."

C said "Maybe we can sign up millions to join our club and have parties going on all the time all over the world, simultaneously..."

C met a poet who was a very bad poet, but he kept trying.

A said, “Most would-be poets write drivel at first. But it is a craft that you have to learn.”

C said, “Anyway he had the magic touch and it was good loving.”

A said her busker saxophone player who was a chain smoker would sometimes pass out while playing... But she said, “He was a genius, and had written many good songs. I asked him don’t you want to be famous and he said ‘No. Too much practice.’” And he refused to join our jet party.

C said, “Many great people have a low degree of fame and don’t want to be famous.”

GEORGIA

Population 5 million

Capital Tbilisi, 1.5 million

Growing and peaceful...

C said, “I met a man who told me I was the most beautiful thing he’d ever seen in his life. It was sweet love...”

A remarked, “He didn’t know you were so crazy though.”

C said, “Still it is nice to be so inspirational. I know that I have inspired many men to live life to the full. And I am happy about that.”

A said, “You seldom meet your equal, usually one is smarter than the other and I have yet to meet a man I consider smarter than me.”

C said, “You set your standards too high.”

But C said, “Backwards countries can be full of unforeseen thrills. Every country we go to is a surprise...”

A said, “I wasn’t speaking inspirationally, I was speaking in the name of sex and loved a couple of eager young men here.”

C said, “Sometimes I feel you are like a militant and other times I think you are crazy. But it is a crazy world where you need to be tough, I guess.”

A said, “I am not militant, I just don’t put up with any bull shit.”

C said, “It would be nice if we lived in a world of truth and sex.”

A said, “I loved a young student. It was nothing special.”

TURKMENISTAN

Population 5 million.

Ashgabat 0.7 million

Cheap oil and gas, but corrupt police and heavy censorship. We had to pay them off to have our little parties... We stayed in our hotel in the capital, a place of neoclassical buildings.

C said, "I met a man who hit me and abused me physically. It was a nightmare."

And C said, "Did a lover ever say hurtful things to you?"

A replied, "Yes, many times. But that's par for the course."

C spoke, "I feel like a Shakespearian actress in a bad play."

A said, "Sometimes the tragedies can be enlightening, sometimes bad times are more memorable than good. After all our memories are selective..."

A said, "The women here are hard to meet, but we just want to meet men anyway."

C said, "There will be plenty of time for female friends when the trip is over..."

C said, "But I hooked up with a Hollywood director who was here on vacation. He was a new director and his latest film was, 'Cut the Crap.' I watched it and it seemed pretty good. He was married but I had an affair with him anyway, it was too tempting... And the love was good."

A said, "I know you like artsy types, but I met a scientist (astronomer) and we talked about the future of science."

He wanted to build an observatory many times the size of existing ones. I said, "I want to love you inside the observatory..."

Under the stars...

UZBEKISTAN

Population 23 million

Tashkent 2.2 million

The Aral sea is quickly disappearing due to overdoing it on irrigation. This is a serious problem for Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan. Once the fourth largest lake in the world it has now largely gone.

Nightlife has many clubs...We rented one out...

A said, "It seems like paradise here; so many pure men..."

C said, "There is much to be said for a pure man who has not been poisoned by the ways of the world."

And C met such a "pure man," a young man who was innocent in the ways of love. C said, "It was perfect."

A said, "I hate inexperienced lovers. So I always ask them point blank if they are a good lover."

And C said, "All women should wear make up no matter what. And try their best to be beautiful. Being beautiful for your partner at all times is very important."

A local woman said, "I prefer natural beauty. In any case it is all the same in the dark."

Some expats were here, one asked A, "Are you feeling crazy tonight?"

She said, "I always feel crazy."

And he asked, “Can I shave you from top to bottom?”

She said, “No.”

And he said “You are like Fort Knox baby, and I have the golden key.”

A said, “So I loved him. But it didn’t count, so I loved a local student also...”

A said, “Another man asked if I had royalty in my blood. I made rough love with him.”

C said, “You like it rough don’t you?”

A said, “It is passion. Unbridled passion.”

KYRGYZSTAN, March 21, 2023

Population 5.2 million

Bishkek, the capital, 1 million

Forced marriage in the past mostly was the custom.

A asked about sperm/egg banks but they didn’t have them...

But there was an American trained doctor, from a rich family who said he’d do test tube babies just for us, with him as the father. He would look after the kids... C loved him for a few days and sold him a few eggs for hundreds of thousands of dollars. We had our eggs in banks in NYC which were frozen and could be shipped out.

We had both agreed to take fertility drugs some time ago. Anyway it seemed to make us more horny.

And then we left wishing him good luck.

We were thinking it was nearing the time we had some kids.

Anyway, as A said, “We wanted numerous offspring but didn’t want the trouble of raising them.”

Anyway, A met another doctor who told her medicine here was backwards and not very effective. He’d like to go to the West he said. Anyway A loved him and gave him some money to help him get out of the country.

All of the foreigners we met here we found to be interesting. After all it was like being on the ends of the Earth.

We decided to stay in a five star hotel as always.

But at the bar we met a man who wore a speedo bathing suit as underwear and showered with the suit on. Never took it off.

Then there was a girl who also didn’t wash her clothes. She said, “hang them out in the wind.” And so on.

And we met and loved two guys who planned to spend 6 weeks in each Asian country a trip of many years. They were both buskers so could earn money in most places.

We met some adventurers who were trying to see much of the world, but none planned realistically to get to every country. Most wanted to go to countries that were “amusing.”

But then we met a guy who wanted to get laid in every single country and colonies too and all big cities and he had money to keep going in style for 20 more years. So our idea of our trip was nothing new, but it is easier and more difficult at the same time to love if you are a woman. And in any case we were famous and glamorous and charming and bold and rich and so on...

A said, "Let's face it for single travelers it is a big ordeal to travel to every country and it is very expensive as well."

C said, "Best to sell your house and spend all your money traveling. When you are old the government will look after you."

KAZAKHSTAN

Population 16 million

Almaty 1.4 million and Astana 0.6 million and the capital

Religious tolerance here; several groups.

Sheep's head dinner we had on our arrival here...

Corrupt police dangerous but our local friends took care of everything as usual...

The people at the party seemed quite boisterous for the middle of nowhere.

C asked a man, "What do you think about traditional love here?"

He said, "I don't believe in traditional love, I just wanted lovers just like the Americans, and courtship is a waste of time, so too arranged marriages. And I want sexy hot girls to make love with me."

So C did it with him. After she told him to get to the United States or Canada where he could enjoy life in the good cities.

A met a man who was a professional ballet dancer. A said, "How do you feel about dancing?"

He replied, "I prefer crazy rock music."

A said, "Why then this ballet?"

He said, "I meet tons of girls in ballet." So A loved him.

Of course the Russian space program was based here since it was closer to the equator.

A said, "I heard they put up a new orbiting telescope about a year or two ago which is more powerful than Hubble."

C said, "There is no limit to the power of a telescope. Maybe they can build one on the moon where atmospheric interference is less and create jobs and a colony on the moon.

C loved a rocket scientist here. He claimed he was going to set foot on the moon one day. So she made love with this moon man. He said we need celebrities to go to the moon and inspire everyone else.

A said, "Hmm maybe we should try that."

C said, "Why not? Maybe the grand finale of the trip."

ARMENIA

Population: 3 million

Capital, Yerevan, population 1.1 million

Most people were Christians.

We met a man who said, “There is no better love than with drugs like ecstasy.”

But he said, “Many of us Armenians have been exiled due to wars with Turkey.”

And he said, “Many Armenians live in other countries...”

A asked him, “Is love like a drug for you?”

He said sure, “But it is hard to meet open-minded women who have a good education. The whole society is too backwards,” he said.

But he said, “I like trance music with ecstasy pills best.”

And he said, “Some say the music is mindless and so is ecstasy... but it sure feels good.”

He said, “You have to open your mind and be ready for anything...”

A said, “Backwards countries are often highly amusing. Often they are full of surprises. Some ordinary people turn out to be crazy in the end.”

So C partied with and loved him.

A said, I dated a young man from the farm who was seeking his fortune in the big city. “It was a whirlwind romance,” she said.

AZERBAIJAN

Population 9 million

The capital city is Baku 2.3 million

50% think they are atheists, the rest mainly Muslims.

C said, “I made love with an artist here, he painted, ‘Heavenly pictures’”

C asked him, “If he had met ‘female predators’” He said he had met women who wanted to be part of his art as he was becoming famous here in Azerbaijan.

He said, “Most of the best women have left the country... but I am not leaving yet.”

A said, “You have got to stick with it and help your countrymen. That is noble, but maybe better to come to America. It is every man for himself...”

But C said, “There’s nation building to be done here in this new country...”

C said, “We all live in a personal bubble, and it can be hard to open your mind and help others...”

Finally, “We went to our rented nightclub as per usual. With no dancing...”

C continued talking with this philosopher who said, “Atheism is the future and people should try to enjoy life. Period.”

C replied, “Its already happening this atheism, this nihilism. People don’t want to believe in anything, just have a quiet middle class life, typically divorced...”

A said, “I loved a man who was a mayor of a small city. His idea was to follow Plato and create an enlightened man, a philosopher king.”

A said, “You never know who you’ll find in this big world...”

C said, “The idea of a philosopher King is not new, but seldom have true geniuses been elected/seized power. It will never be any different. I think people are either born clever or stupid with a lot in between. And most education is just memorization and most people don’t even read.”

And A said, “Yes we would be geniuses in politics and could do a lot of good for the poor, especially women, if we were elected (at the end of the trip).”

PAKISTAN

Population: 170 million

Islamabad: 0.7 million and the capital city

Karachi 13 million

A couple of men bumped into A walking down the street. Hitting her in the chest...

We had to get a liquor license and held our “permit room” party secretly after all the police had been paid off.

We also sold some more of our eggs to the highest bidder. A said, “We should do this more often. It was horny to ovulate...” But we each had over a hundred eggs still frozen in NYC.

A said, “What about having more than two perfect lovers?”

C stated, “When you approach perfection, two lovers is not enough.”

A spoke, “Well-spoken.”

And A said, “For many lost people they should go to a poor country where you are considered rich and enjoy life....”

And A said, “I met a man who thought we were fabulously rich. But, I think some lovers are like inquisitors like this one man I met here. Frankly it was boring. There are a lot of bossy men out there... And he was boring in bed.”

C said, “I met a man who called himself, ‘A new kind of movie maker,’ but I watched his films and was bored... He was a good lover though... But why can’t this populous country make good films?” She asked.

AFGHANISTAN

Population: 28 million

Capital: Kabul 3 million plus

A said, "War is a problem with all that opium growing in Afghanistan."

C said, "Yes, almost all opium used to make heroin, comes from Afghanistan."

C added, "They will never be able to solve the opium problem as long as it is illegal."

A said, "I think if they could make a strong military and non-corrupt government here they could do it, after all few other countries grow heroin, lucrative as it is."

A said, "I feel sorry for the women here; kept down, and denied an education... Terrorized in some cases."

C said, "It is not inspirational."

A replied, "Backwards completely."

C said, "Men here tried to open their minds for us, but they failed ultimately..."

A said, "But it looks to me like the war is winding down however..."

C said "I met an opium farmer and we took opium together and had sex... But male potency is reduced by opium."

A said, “I met a military colonel who wined and dined and loved her. She asked him about the military and he said, “It needs to be stronger to deal with the unrest of the day, particularly corruption, but so many are so corrupt; it’s the culture.”

But he was hopeful. Perhaps the most important thing is to have hope. Without hope of a better life, most people are lost.

INDIA

Population 1.15 billion

Capital, New Delhi, 14 million or so

The monsoon rains were just starting when we arrived. But we stayed inside anyway.

A said upon arrival I hope we don’t take a dip in the Ganges...

We decided to visit the religious capital of India, Varanasi...we saw dead bodies in the river, and we saw naked men with tridents, beggars everywhere

Jain temples and bandages around their mouths lest they accidentally swallow a bug.

The cows and the garbage they ate in the street.

And we heard about abortion of female fetuses that were the wrong sex (over 10 million in recent years).

Monkey thieves stole A's bag but she recovered it.

We met an American motorcycle enthusiast who toured India on the cheap...

"Don't see women on the street so much..." he complained...

Of course for sightseeing, there was the Taj Mahal near New Delhi; C wanted to see it, and came back marveling at it with its numerous semi-precious stones...

And with women rare on the streets, again secret rendez-vous had to be arranged with our choice of lovers. We just had a couple of one night stands and we weren't really hot for them.

One of C's lovers said, "Ghandi set India back into the dark ages as he was against progress."

A got set up a couple of times, but also met an expat. He said he came to India with $USD 20 000, enough for 10 000 days living in India.

He said you can spend your whole life in India doing little. Maybe go home to the West and drive a taxi for one year every 8 years or some such thing.

One man asked C, "How will your love change as you get older?"

C replied, "I hope to be wise; but wisdom is difficult..."

And C said, "I hope to combine pleasure with charity..."

And he asked, "What are your faults when it comes to love?"

C said, "I am too idealistic."

Later A said, "You were right on, you are an idealist..."

C said, "But the world is not ideal."

SRI LANKA

Population: 22 million

Main city: Colombo, 0.7 million

Easygoing people except for the hostility between Tamils and Sinhalese.

AC Clarke the sci-fi writer chose this place as his home. So it must be pretty good. Certainly the scuba diving is good.

C remarked, "I met a local blind man who said love is blind. He said in love things can get out of control. But I loved him all the same."

A said, "Life is but a dream. And you are a femme fatale despite your claims to the contrary..."

C said, "I hate lovers who compare me in a bad light to other lovers they've had when I feel that I am the best."

And C said, "I am not really a nympho or a femme fatale. Surely they can be more imaginative for me..."

A said, “You are too demanding. You should be more like me, I met a prominent businessman who showed me around and wined and dined and loved me. It was perfect.”

MALDIVES

Population: 270 000

Capital: Male, 70 000

The Maldives is Islamic, but they are kind of easy going about it.

They get a lot of tourists and we chose from one of many deserted islands to have our party.

A liked and loved a local tour operator, but his English was poor.

A said, “How do you feel about loving someone you can’t communicate with?”

C said, “Love can work in any situation, no matter how dire... I’ve heard of many instances where two lovers couldn’t or almost couldn’t speak each other’s language.”

And C said, “I made love on the beach at night with a young fisherman. It was perfect.”

And A said, “I also made love, except it was under the water with a local scuba operator.”

C said, “Yes it is always good to have a good ambience. But be careful the sharks don’t get you!”

MYANMAR/BURMA

Population: 50 million.

Capital: Yangon/Rangoon, population 4 million.

Virtually no nightlife

Prostitutes as usual for this part of the world

Of course Suu Ki is still under house arrest. But, said C, “She is my hero.”

In any case we couldn’t visit with her so we concentrated on our party. Many of the guests were poor students (when the universities were open; they were often closed).

A made love to some of the young, poor students and so did C.

A said, “Sometimes you think a man will be a great lover, but they are not. Education plays a part in romance, some people in developing countries are good looking and clever, but are uneducated. It is so primitive.”

Education makes for good lovers...

C remarked, “Burmese men are anxious to love a Western woman, and we can deliver that.”

A said, “But such men are boring to us from lack of experience.”

“Opposites attract however,” said C.

We wore sarongs while we were here. And the men wore saris. Many people wanted to help us for money. Some spoke excellent English.

MALAYSIA

Population: 18 million

Kuala Lumpur, the capital, 7.2 million

We spent a couple of days in Penang but of course it was too touristy. But we got a nice tan.

And we arranged parties in Kuala Lumpur

KL was made up of mostly Muslims and 30% Chinese

The Twin towers are very famous.

A and C met a couple of Chinese who were rich businessmen. They spent a lot of money on us, gave us diamonds and dinners. Afterwards we sold the diamonds....

A said, “What is more important, freedom or love?”

C said, “Freedom.”

And A said, “How do you feel about spoiling your lover...? These two Chinese guys definitely tried to spoil us.”

C said, “Never spoil anyone, friend or lover...”

A said, “But in any case, it is a cold, hard world. No need to be cold-hearted.

C spoke, “It is a bad idea to spoil anyone, but if you really like someone it is hard to stop...”

BRUNEI

Population 400 000

Capital: Bandar Seri Begawan, population 130 000

Some said Brunei was the richest country in the world due to its oil reserves and small populace.

The king was famous for his womanizing... with he and his crazy friends. Even importing beauties from America.

Alcohol is prohibited to Muslims who are the vast majority of the populace, but non-Muslims can purchase some to consume at home. We only had 3 friends here anyway, and they brought friends so we had a house party with 50 people...

A said, “Some people have lousy love experiences and so lose interest in love... Like I just had here with a boring man.”

C replied, “But drugs are starting to solve that problem such as male potency drugs... And good make up/plastic surgery for women... And of course people become progressively more liberal as time passes.”

And C said, “She found a wise old man who regaled her with tales of Brunei’s past. And he was a skilful lover.”

A said, “Love conquers all, as the ancient Romans used to say.”

INDONESIA

Population: 230 million

Capital: Jakarta, population 9 million

Taxi cabs were illiterate for maps so we ordered a small fleet of cabs to drive us around. We would take limos but that would make us stand out like a sore thumb to tabloids. We wanted the press coverage, but not tabloids.

In fact here we started to give interviews to real journalists.

“Even though it was a Muslim country, the people were more open and free just like Phillipines,” one man told us.

A said, "I met a rich man who wanted to control me totally and he had his minions follow me everywhere. Why do so many people want to control their lover?"

C stated, "People are naturally selfish and want more power. But this guy you are talking about seems like a real asshole."

A said, "But he spoiled me and was a great lover. Anyway it is over now."

There are a lot of slums around Jakarta. Many poor farmers with houses on stilts. Most are content or so they say.

We were going to go to Bali, but decided it was too touristy. We hate mindless tourists.

C said, "We should set up in every country, "A Hall of Great Lovers..." And even start a "Love School in every country."

A said, "It's a good idea but not here in Indonesia. Still too conservative here. But let me think about that.

Before we left we went to the island of Sumatra to see orangutans...

Nothing special for either A or C.

C said she loved an artist who painted fantasy/surreal pictures of high quality. She bought a few from him to decorate the plane.

PAPUA NEW GUINEA, June 21, 2012

Population: 6.6 million

Capital: Port Moresby, population 260 000

Sweet potatoes and occasional pork for their diet

Many English speakers, Chinese are 3% of the population but hold most of the wealth.

Lots of Aussies

A said, "I met and loved a local man who lied and said he was not married. But I found out he was lying."

A said, "How do you feel about lies in a relationship?"

C said, "Most people lie about sex. They say they are in love, but they are not... Often they are lying to themselves..."

A said, "What kind of lovers are the best?"

C said, "Women decide who loves who, men are greedy for any kind of love, I think..."

C said, "I met and loved a prominent local banker of Chinese ancestry here." He said, "One day his country would be rich. But we need education."

And he said, "Hopefully we can purchase computers subsidized and cheap and teach ourselves."

C noted the Indonesians are a handsome race, but they are backwards,

EAST TIMOR

Population: 1.1 million.

Capital, Dili, population 60 000.

It is a new country.

But not much is here.

War with Indonesia devastated the country.

C claimed to have met a psychotic man who was very violent and tried to kill her when she said she was leaving. She ran out the door where one of our bodyguards was positioned and he wrestled the man to the ground and beat him up and took her away.

C opined, “Do you feel some people are evil, when it comes to love?”

A said, “Many people are heartbreakers, but if your heart is broken you need to smarten up. No man can break my heart...”

A said, “I loved a young man here who called me cruel for dumping him. I tried to explain it was the trip that mattered.”

C said, “Then I met a modern day hippie who was an interesting man. He told me the sex revolution will come again one day soon.”

A said, “I think that hippies are atavistic marijuana smokers.

C said, “But some of them have musical talent and believe in free love.”

A said, “I guess we have to fill in for them and provide an alternative movement.”

C said, “What should we call our movement?”

A said, “World Lover’s Association; ‘WLA’”

PHILLIPINES

Population: 92 million

Manila, capital, 19.5 million

Food wasn't so good.

But we enjoyed sex and scuba. Phillipinos love sex and parties...

Dark skinned men, very attractive.

We met a man who told us this country was the best party country in the world.

A said, "I wonder?"

A met a pro soccer player. He was in marvelous shape and very attractive.

A said, "How do you like sports?"

C said, "I think men love it if a girl is a tomboy."

A said, "Here viagra and such drugs are readily available so even an old foreign man can have sex here with nubile young ladies."

C said, "Such old men will pay a girl large sums to love them day after day."

C added, “I loved a Phillipino businessman, and we went on a cruise on his yacht. He offered to marry me, and I tried to tell him it was impossible. Finally the trip was over and I ran away and got a taxi out of there.”

A said, “Some marry a much older man to sacrifice themselves for their family as her husband can give them money.”

A said in my case, “I met a local Chinese jeweler. He gave me gold and diamonds which I sold on my last day here. He gave me chocolates and flowers and I threw them away. I was also anxious to get away, too...”

BANGLADESH

Population: 161 million. Most densely populated country in the world.

Capital: Dhaka, 7 million

It was pouring rain when we arrived and it rained for much of the week. We didn't care, we lived high up in our hotel suite.

Throw off the paparazzi in this conservative place...

But dozens of paparazzi and a few freelance journalist followed our website and were waiting, and now finally they had chance to blow our whole trip out into the open, which they did. Everyone was gossiping about us (we were very photogenic).

We arrived without much fanfare just a dozen or so paparazzi outside and another 10 of our club plus their 100 friends.

Driving down the streets there were rickshaws everywhere. So backwards.

Deprived local men find it hard to get women.

Alcohol. Non Muslims can bring in a few bottles, so we did and we paid off the police to have our nightclub party. We participated in speed dating again so we met 60 men for 2 minutes each and each chose one and quickly and left before the place was closed down.

A said, "Many men here are isolated and living in a cage, that is local society. They don't know how to socialize with foreigners at all."

But C said, "I kind of like shy men."

A said, "I prefer outgoing men; otherwise it is too much work."

A said, "Are you planning on marriage?"

C said, "Don't be ridiculous... You are not serious?"

A said, "Well you are always talking about falling in love and perfect love. One of these days you'll marry..."

C said, "I could say the same about you and your ideal lover you talk about."

NEPAL

Population: 30 million

Capital: Katmandu, population, 1.7 million

Upon arrival A said, “I would like to have sex on top of Mount Everest...”

Maybe bring tens of porters bringing oxygen

But we didn’t have time for such an expedition.

But we went to the base camps at the foot of the mountain.

A said, “I met an excellent man at the base camp but he was more interested in nature than me.”

And C said “Of course, I’ve had unrequited love many times. Sometimes however love can turn ugly... You never know.”

After a few days at the base camp we went to Katmandu. It was largely a tourist city and we found it dull even though it was the high season. And there was a lot of rain.

C opined, “The local nightlife isn’t so great. People here are so poor. Bars are full of tourists...”

A said she met a travel agent. “He was a strong lover,” she said.

C said, she met a local craftsman who made things for tourists. I asked him if he did other art but he replied, “He was just a craftsman. He said he had done art to satisfy tourists and he kept a sketch book record of his creations.”

He was a good lover with soft hands. But C asked, “Why can’t I meet more brilliant artists?”

C said, “There just aren’t that many brilliant geniuses around and they have their own lives and careers and many seldom come to the bar or chat on the Net.

BHUTAN

Population, 700 000

Capital, Thimpu, population 100 000.

To get to this tiny Himalayan country you needed to apply for permission.

The country tries hard to preserve nature and the old ways.

But nightlife here is nascent yet growing. It is a far out place for real travelers.

A said, "I hit on a man and I don't think he knew it. Thought I was just being friendly maybe."

A said, "Do you feel love is universal?"

C said, "In the future love will be all ILAs (instant love affairs/love at first sight.). For the WLA (World Love Association).

"ILA, WLA WOULD"

And A said, "Do you feel men who love tourists try to understand women?"

C spoke, "'No, and most women don't try to hard to understand their man. It is not about understanding, but rather enjoyment..."

A said, "I think no one tries to understand each other just like you say..."

C said, "But many men have a high EQ, which is good."

We had no problem seducing two tour guides however and they were in their early 20s but it was all to the good we figured.

CHINA

Population: 1.3 billion

Capital: Beijing, 13 million

Summer in the capital. Very agreeable.

Beijing was an ultra modern city and so were most Chinese large cities people said.

And if you have got money you are in paradise here...

C said, "One child policy (two if you are rich...).

Do you think kids are good for a relationship these days?"

A answered, "If you decide you are too old to search for love, then I guess it is time to have a baby. But you and I are still too young for that. Except for selling your eggs.

So we got more fertility treatment here and planned to sell the eggs in a month's time. We took million dollar bids to sell them.

C wanted to see the Great Wall and also the Forbidden City and museums...

“There are many middle-aged rich men here in modern China’s capital...”
said A.

Many have mistresses..

But there are not enough women to go around due to abortions of female fetuses.

Many nightclubs and karaoke/KTV

A said, “I met a man who said he was crazy so I jumped into bed with him. It was just like he said: crazy. Weird rhythms and sex positions and screaming.”

A said, “What about ‘crazy love?’”

C answered, “Like any other country, there are a lot of passionate men. We just need to get them to come to ‘our club.’”

A said, “I find many Chinese are open to foreigners, more open than most.”

A added, “They think the West is excellent and love to meet people like us.”

China is so large, but it is a good time anywhere. Unfortunately we only went to Beijing...

But China is opening up quickly and amazing everyone...

However we were not foolish girls who just travel to buy things though. We wanted hard core love.

C said she met, “A prominent politician. He said China is on the road to perfection. He said China has better leadership than America.”

And C said, “I loved him for his vision.”

But A said, If China rules the world what will happen? Probably they will push other countries around, just like in ancient times.”

C said, "It is a new world and the past is gone. I think China will lead the world in science and business and even the arts.

A said, "Well that remains to be seen."

C said, "I loved a different man every night. And they were all great.

A said, "I concur. China is really dynamite. I had a few lovers myself."

THAILAND

Population: 67 million

Capital, Bangkok, population, 12 million

C said, "My theory is kings of past killed off most of the tough guys and now many men want to be women."

A replied, "How do you know for sure it is a woman?"

They can do surgery to remove your Adam's apple and create what appears to be a woman. Including your voice, your vagina etc.

Some of these "lady boys" are taller and that's the only way you can tell. Also the lady boys like to be sodomized.

The locals are either promiscuous or hard to get. It is like night and day.

But being girls it was easy to get love as always. We both loved Thai businessmen.

Most foreign men here are willing to love the women, but many foreigners want to sodomize a lady boy...

Parties here go on every day.

A said, "Do you feel love is largely a comedy or a tragedy?"

C said, "Here in Thailand it is a comedy, for sure. But life itself is a tragedy, no doubt about that..."

A said, "Do you feel we should have just stayed in Bangkok longer?"

C said. "But our mission requires that we visit each independent country. We have to keep at it."

A said, "Are you sure you don't want to take a break?"

C said, "We have to strike now that the iron is hot."

CAMBODIA

Population: 16 million

Capital: Phnom Penh 2.5 million

Good looking people though, attractive to tourists

The party here in the capital was interesting

Local people just need a little confidence

A said, “For example a girl needs to know what she wants and then go for it...”

Ordinary people can step up and run any country. That is democracy. Some say we don’t want strong leaders. Except in times of war.

For example the persecution of intellectuals here was an outrage and nobody did anything about it until finally Vietnam stepped in and threw out the Khmer Rouge. After they had killed a quarter of the population including all the thinkers, teachers and scientists. Even those who wore glasses or spoke English were murdered. Quite simply there are no clever people left here.

The country is a basket case with beautiful people. People are gorgeous here.

But poor people can now talk abroad on the Net and expand their horizons.

Part of our group/club we now had 100 000 members in our club and many wanted to join us in our travels but we told them we want to meet local people only for this trip. After the trip, who knows? All are invited to the finale in NYC in 2014. We hope it will be a party to rival New Year’s Eve and will be a lasting group/ association...

Anyway C loved a poor teacher who wasn’t that dumb and A loved a cook. They had a party for four in the hotel...

LAOS

Population: 6.5 million

Capital: Vientiane, population 750 000

Here, like many countries in this area there were readily available drugs and prostitutes...

We met a local he sold us drugs such as crystal meth., cocaine, ecstasy, opium...

We didn't often do drugs, but we were having such a good time here, we indulged fully.

C said, "What is one love question that you will not answer?"

A said, "I keep my sex fantasies to myself. I prefer to be the mystery woman."

C responded, "Of course men love a mystery woman... But I tell my lovers anything they want to know.

A said, "You are crazy..."

C said, "But here in Laos anything goes and ancient culture is quickly disappearing. Lots of beautiful temples though..."

A said, "But the culture here is free to us foreigners. Eat French food every night, love any man..."

As it turned out we both had several lovers. It was easy to get them, but they were just toys for us.

VIETNAM

Population: 90 million

Capital: Hanoi, population, 3.5 million

Biggest city: Saigon (Ho Chi Minh city), 5 million

We went to Saigon.

Everyone riding motorcycles

French food and other good Vietnamese food...

C went to the war museum. “Somewhat disturbing,” she said. For example American war crimes and birth defects caused by agent orange...

A met an old Vietnamese who told her all the war had been for nothing. Like most wars.

She was intrigued and loved him. Afterwards she couldn't decide if had been good or not.

C asked him, “How do you know if your lover truly knows you?”

And he said, “Some women don't communicate well, so it is difficult.”

And C replied, “Some people don’t know themselves...”

A said, “Did you ever have a lover who didn’t really like you? E.g. just want your money?”

C said, “It has happened many times, but that doesn’t hurt the loving experience. Any port in a storm.”

And C said, “I loved the owner of a French restaurant who was a local. He cooked wonderful food for me, especially some food with nice sauces.

SINGAPORE

Population of the city state: 5 million.

Chinese money here as most are Chinese...

The city state is known for having the most rich single women in the world... And so of course there were a lot of single rich men as well...

A met a man who proposed marriage after only a couple of sex encounters. As per custom she laughed at him and made him feel bad. “What a fool you are,” she said.

C said, “How do you feel about a relationship that lasts your entire life? I mean you could have many lovers, but what about keeping one for life?”

A said, “Neither of us wants that. But I kind of wish we could stay longer in some of the places we’ve visited. Some of the men were really quite good.”

A said, “Marriage is dead; that’s for sure... I am glad I don’t live in ancient times or even a few generations ago...”

And A added, “Singapore is an exciting place however with many ‘challenging men’”

A said she also met an East Indian man here who was a rich businessman and a good cook. She gained a lot of weight with him.

C said, she loved a Chinese tycoon, and lived like a queen for the whole week. Her lover gave her a million dollars to help with the trip. She invited him of course to NYC in 2014 for the big end of trip party.

By now we had invited 10s of 1000s to the big party in 2014 summertime in NYC...

MONGOLIA

Population: 2.9 million

Capital: Ulan Bator 1.5 million

It was late summer so not so cold.

It was a dangerous place for foreigners here. Some were murdered.

For the poor people they wanted vodka. They drink 210 bottles per person per year.

We were on tour just outside the city when a car smashed into ours and the other cars' people demanded vodka. There were 12 of them in two cars. Fortunately we had some so they let us go. Some of our bodyguards wanted to fight however.

People here say a large number are descendants of Genghis Khan back in the 13th century. Since he had a lot of wives.

We reserved a famous nightclub for our parties....

Wild men showed up, "barbarians," said C.

We tried to start a 1960s style "love in,"

Try to start a love in a new tent city.

We each loved a businessman. Both men were kind of wild. But it was good.

Another man told A he was on the verge of suicide, but she didn't love him as it was too dangerous.

C said, "Many people here are living on the edge..."

A said, "If you only had a minute to live what would you do?"

"I'd make love," said C.

A spoke, "Just like some of the people of ancient Pompeii. However I would take heroin and dream as I died."

C said, "I feel I am on a runaway train already. Hope of salvation I guess would get me through it."

A said, "The faster the train goes the more exciting it gets.... Or vertigo to ascend to high heights..."

TAIWAN, September 2023

Population: 23.2 million

Capital: Taipei 6 million (metro area)

Caught in a typhoon, but we stayed high and dry in our hotel.

People said that the people of Taiwan “love Westerners.”

Taxis everywhere, stores, restaurants everywhere, 24 hour things; city of total convenience

They were on the whole pleased to meet friendly people...

Got our friends to set us up as usual. Over 500 by invitation only to the nightclubs almost every night

Typically after the bar we went to KTV to sing songs and got laid later with a different man each night. This created some jealousy, but it couldn't be helped. One guy told us we were like vampires sucking out the best stories of new men and then loving them and then abandoning them.

It was all good, though.

C said, “What is the worst thing a lover ever did to you?”

A said, “Those who kiss and tell. It is hard to fend off the media from talking to such men that we met. Tabloids are heating up.”

C said one of the men she met and loved was a man who liked the outdoors which was something rare in crowded Taiwan.

We went to the mountains and came upon a rope bridge crossing. I told him I was afraid of heights, but he just laughed. I tried to cross but then some kids came jumping up and down. Finally I made it. He said, "All fears can be overcome."

C said, "Taipei people were the nicest I've met so far. Their English is not too bad either."

A said, "Yes it is off the beaten track. That's why it is good..."

C said, "I really like Chinese people. I like the food, I like the friendliness and openness and they have money and there are some handsome men."

A said, "Taiwan is a nice blend of money and remoteness."

JAPAN

Population: 127 million.

Capital: Tokyo, Greater Tokyo Metro area, 37 million, largest in the world...

Blondes have fun in Japan.

Many Japanese men wanted a piece of us...

A said; "S & M, a lot of perverts here. Heard about one guy who was selling used women's underwear that he had actually worn himself."

Also groping on the trains...

Also phoning at random and listening to see if a woman answers and try to pick her up.

Sumo wrestlers also crazy...

Sci-fi novels. C said, "I read a Japanese sci-fi story about a man who slowly eats himself and replaces the flesh with robotic parts. Finally all that's left is his mouth."

One local described it as some Japanese "are totally crazy," but most are normal humans.

We ate a lot of fine food; we especially liked barbecues and teppanyakis.

Japan in many ways is a futuristic country with robots and wild nightclubs and convenience.

A-bomb legacy, but now they worry about North Korea. High tech military... Very strong military here in Japan.

C asked, "a self-proclaimed 'professor of love' how does the scientific method pertain to romance?"

The "professor" said it is "all trial and error. That is science."

And C inquired of the professor, "What is the future of love?"

The “professor said, “Love will be more crazy and passionate than today.”

So C tested him out and he was a lousy lover. “But all love is good.” she said.

A said, “You should have asked him about the idea of love disappearing.”

C said, “I am sure he would have said, ‘Enjoy life to the fullest and don’t worry about tomorrow.’”

A said I met a kinky guy who said he was a published author. He published classic love stories he said. Classic but with a kinky twist. Kind of like DeSade. He said he’d made love in every conceivable place and tried very strange sex positions. Such as sex with a girl’s ankles... or sex with her hair...

SOUTH KOREA

Population: 49 million

Capital: Seoul, Greater Seoul Metro area, 25 million, second in the world

Seoul is a beautiful city, rebuilt after the Korean war.

Our first impressions however, were that the place was a bit conservative relative to Taiwan or Japan...

For example, A was talking to several Korean woman, asking what they thought about love and they said a man can always go to a prostitute.

But virtually all Korean women wear make up. Of course we (A and C) were good looking and didn't need make up.

And Koreans all seemed to drink a lot, and so we had fun parties with them.

But C found love with several Korean men and so did A.

C met a man who took us to Cheju island. It was fall and not yet time for skiing and too cold for the beach but we went to a relaxing resort anyway.

A relaxing resort... Good for parties with people

A loved a skier who was fit and lovable.

C made love with the guy who set us up in Cheju.

A said, "I've never been to a country I didn't like. And I've been surprised by many things in every country I've visited. In particular there is such a great variety of sexy men in the world.

Tradition is changing fast our Korean friends kept telling us.

NORTH KOREA

Population: 24 million

Capital: Pyongyang, 2.2 million

You can take government tours for 100-200 USD/day...

No speaking to locals other than the tour guide and people they want you to see.

We tried to get a party going with just two men, but they were boring and ultimately we had to love them on the last day we were here, keeping our streak alive.

One North Korean told us that in his country men reached a sexual peak at 30 not 18 which is generally acknowledged. We attributed this to deprivation.

Dull communist architecture, people who seemed cold but we could not talk to them.

Our tour guide had said, “We better not try and love any North Koreans or we will get into trouble.”

A said, “I feel like a miracle worker. We can do anything, anywhere.

XX

XX

The first thing we did was announce that all our Net friends would require AIDS test conducted just before we came. And have a lot of condoms.

It was a brilliant idea, we both thought. Especially for some “disaster countries” like South Africa, Botswana and Zimbabwe.

We had our 8 Bodyguards too and in dangerous countries we upped it to as many as 30 guards... These local guards would provide weapons to our guards...

And we took precautions with disease by boiling all water including what we washed in. For example 300 million Africans had bilharzia which gives red urine and anemia. And amoebic dystentry was also common.

And we had large mosquito nets over our double beds to ward off malaria and other diseases such as yellow fever...

And traveler’s diarrhea was a constant nemesis so we tended only to eat food our chef’s prepared or our friends in those countries. And gastric problems of many kinds happened here.

And the chef would bring food to our hotel rooms (he had a kitchen on the plane).

MOROCCO

Population: 33 million

Capital: Rabat, 2 million

Casablanca, principal city, 4 million

There were touts all over, especially on the coast. Also harassment of Western women was common.

C said, I liked the movie, “Casablanca.” But it is a crazy, chaotic city.

We decided on Casablanca for our parties, if for no reason other than liking the movie.

A said, I liked the movie the Sheltering Sky written by Paul Bowles who lived in Tangier.

And we made a day trip to Marakesh with it’s amazing architecture and city life.

Many travelers here came for the readily available hashish.

It seemed a lot of people, mostly men, were smoking some hash. Many men offered it to us even though it is officially illegal.

Some smoked hash in cafes...

And there were coffee houses, mainly for men, in which they smoked...

Women would not fit in well, but we went to a couple of such cafes anyway.

A said, "I asked a young man how sexually free he thought he was... And he said not at all. Just prostitutes."

And A said, "And the young man said, 'We are all in a cage of our own making, living like animals.'"

A said, "Don't you think young women are repressed?" He said of course. It sucks he said.

However both A and C scored a pair of young men who were twins which was erotic. We each made love to them both in turn. And laughed about it afterwards.

ALGERIA

35 million population.

Algiers, the capital, population 3.5 million

People don't hear about it so often, but this is the most dangerous place for journalists in the entire world from Muslim extremists...

The country has a lot of oil reserves, but not much else in terms of their economy.

Neolithic cave paintings interested C...

A young man hired as a guide asked us, "Why aren't you married?"

A said, "Marriage these days doesn't solve your problems, but rather makes them worse.

C said, "Most cultures had marriage however, but things are sure changing fast. Goodbye to marriage."

Women are badly treated in Algeria especially by Islamic fundamentalists and forced into prostitution.

But the young man said, "What can I do to stop it? I'd like to leave this place..."

We gave him some money and told him to get out.

We both made risqué love with two local journalists and it was quite the party even though there was only a handful of us... It was as if we were on the sinking Titanic we lived as if there was no tomorrow.

Fortunately the paparazzi weren't following us here... Too dangerous for them.

TUNISIA

11 million people

Tunis, the capital, 0.8 million

Ancient Carthage, ruins for C to examine. C said, “Carthage very nearly destroyed Rome when it was just a middle power, crossing the Alps with attack elephants.”

People here drank alcohol, but mostly only at home...

A said to a young man, “Don’t you wish you could travel?”

He said, “Of course, but I am not rich enough. But he was a good lover for A and she gave him some money and wished him luck.

C meanwhile found a rich man and partied at his home and loved him. He also donated to the cause.

Afterwards C said to A, “I met a lot of men here and some people have a low sex drive, but maybe it is just their conditioning...”

A replied, “I can’t believe there is so little love here in Tunisia.”

C said, “Of course every city here has a red light district... Sex only.”

And they claim AIDS is virtually non-existent.

LIBYA

Population: 7million

Tripoli population, the capital, 1.7 million

Weather is dry and hot

It is a safe country with low crime and low AIDS, or so they say.

C said, from what I have seen these people don't seem to be able to relate to tourists. No English and not much interest.

Tripoli tea houses, of course no alcohol. Smuggled some in. Enough to party, but the police got wind of it and we were forced to keep the party to a small group elsewhere.

Secret rendez-vous organized tours a must. Our few friends here didn't do such a good job of arranging the party here. They explained they don't have that kind of thing here...

Oil rich nation. Richer than South Africa, richest nation in Africa.

Forbidden fruit to love someone here.

Love is just a short term relationship we both thought, and that was the reputation of women from our countries of USA and Canada. Just like Hollywood love happens easily and quickly we told the people here.

One man C loved said, "We had broken his heart" But we told him broken hearts are "for fools."

A said, "This country is no fun. I can hardly wait to leave. And I couldn't find a good man anywhere but finally I loved a local engineer working with the oil industry. It was boring."

But we had agreed beforehand to go to every country for a week, and we could not change our solemn vows.

EGYPT

Population: 82 million

Capital: Cairo, population 11 million

A said she wanted to see the Pyramid of Cheops, the Great Pyramid almost 5 000 years old

Memphis old pyramids until 2200 BC

Thebes about 3500 years old, e.g. Luxor: King Tut and the Valley of the Kings.

Red Sea resorts, sunny everyday...

We went on a Nile cruise. Our guide said don't swim in the Nile as you might get bilharzia. 300 million people have the disease mostly in Africa and it is not curable. Red urine is symptomatic of the disease...

Ruins of Alexandria for C at the end.

A met a local archaeologist, and they hit it off.

C met a tour guide and loved him.

Towards the end of the trip, we had a big party with several thousand people and the police had approved it. We used our connections...

A said the men here in Egypt are exotic....

But there are so many tourists it kind of takes away from the experience.

So we drank at our parties by invitation only as always.

C and A brought their lovers along for the party. The four of us had quite a good time together sampling the best food and drink of Egypt (people drank at home).

Food much like many other Muslim nations... Kebabs and so on. It was good.

A said how could Egypt be so grand in the past and now be nothing important?

C said, "But now Egypt does nothing important, just ekes out a life on rich tourist money. Similarly all civilizations come to ruin sooner or later.

C said of course over time the best people moved around a lot and left places like Egypt. Now everyone has gone to America... America drains the best minds from virtually everywhere.

SUDAN

No beer or drinks... generally speaking, but there is hash and beer especially amongst laborers.

Of course Darfur was still a chaotic province with skirmishes and violence...

Khartoum not much nightlife being Muslim as opposed to the blacks in south. But in the south parties were more common, but it was dangerous. Alcohol was illegal but prevalent. Sometimes it was unsafe to your health...

C visited ancient Meroe, a kingdom that was once very powerful and artistic.

As a former British colony many spoke English.

But there were few tourists in this war-torn country. But step by step peace returns.

Many parts in the south were a “war zone refugee disaster area.”

Hung out with two local journalists and they showed us around, just the two of us.

And we loved them.

We wore veils...

C said, “Hard to know how much prostitution is here. No drugs or alcohol. War zone. If it is not hell on Earth, I don’t know what is.”

C asked one of the local journalists, “Why do you live here? Is it thrilling?”

He answered, “We need to stamp out genocide and wars. But if we don’t cover it, no one will know what atrocities are happening. There’s not much else we can do as mere journalists...”

A asked, “Don’t you think you should take a position regarding world events?”

He said, “We already do, everyone has their biases.”

A asked them, “Do you think love gets crazier and crazier?”

One of them replied, “All love is crazy in Sudan.”

We loved the two journalists and gave them a handsome parting gift of USD and wished them the best.

We could afford it after all. Our assets were now 78 million and growing and every man wanted a piece of us.

KENYA

Population: 31.6m

Capital, Nairobi 2.5 m

Mt. Kilimanjaro snow is melting, global warming, people here say. But this will only lead to drought for Africans. Desertification is eating up the land near the Sahara (and elsewhere in the world).

C said, “The Leakey family and their archaeology was famous here...Some say humans originated in Africa. Others said Man evolved elsewhere maybe Asia or even in South America. No one knows very much about it.

15% have AIDS officially, probably much higher.

So many sick with AIDS... It is an atmosphere of desperation...

Some of our bodyguards ate out and two got sick and we had to go on without them. But the main thing is the two pilots were healthy.

C met a man with his AIDS test and she told him to wear two condoms...

A said, "I met my 'perfect lover.' He was strong, willing and romantic in an unusual way. For instance we made love at many places in the jungle..."

C said, "If I recall correctly, you have found many soul mates on this trip."

But it was dangerous here. Short life expectancy here with diseases like AIDS...

Wildlife safari. Make love in the wild savannah. Where the lions roar...Lots of parks...

TANZANIA

Tanzania: 43 million people

Dar es Salaam, capital, 3 million people

Some people go to visit the parks, of which there were many, e.g. the Serengeti.

And the island of Zanzibar features ancient sites for archaeology; C liked that for a day trip.

C met a local man who she liked, but he turned out to be gay. She asked him, “What is the future of gays?”

The man replied, “In the future gays will have designer babies who are gay.”

A met a black traveler who had wandered all over Africa. He warned us some places were very dangerous to tourists. But at least, we said, the paparazzi won’t follow us to such places.

The traveler told us “With disease and wars Africa is a nightmare. Be glad you don’t live here. And I am leaving for England; Africa is hopeless. I know I am part of the brain drain, but it can’t be helped. You only have one life to live.”

C then met a man who was a local archaeologist, and they hit it off. C asked him if “He dug love.” He replied, “Dig it. As they used to say in the 1960s...”

A met a sculptor who did many nudes and wanted to do one of her. Great she said and they made love. She commissioned him to produce paintings of all the people on the plane, only wearing clothes. Pictures of our journey were released sometimes by us to reputable papers, many of whom covered the story vigilantly.

ETHIOPIA,

Population: 84 million

Capital city: Addis Ababa, population 2.5 million

One of world’s poorest countries

Not many English speakers...

Mostly Christians...

C said, "The more you think outside the box the better lovers you'll have. So our friends set us up with some men and we had a wild party. A and C both found lovers.

C's lover was a very young man, only 19 with high hopes for the future. He told her of his business plans such as building factories in Ethiopia.

He even told her she was like a bottle of fine champagne, the best. And he had never met such a smart girl as her.

A's lover was a tour guide who aspired to the marathon in the Olympics, and they went around making love in various places. He had an incredibly high sex drive.

C said, "It is a very poor country but many of the people here are for the most part content.

A said, "It is a high art to be satisfied with less."

And C spoke, "But in the West people are not satisfied and always want more. Ever since steam power became popular people have been greedy for more."

A replied, "Some people are very greedy and some not at all; but I think in this age it is special and people can live their dreams. You name the dream, it could be made true.

C said, "Yes, few people reach their potential."

A said, "The people of this country need education rather than just enough food to live on; they must dream big and do their best.

ERITREA, December 21, 2012

Population: 4.6 m

Capital: Asmara 1.1 m

Weather was still warm even in winter, as Eritrea was near the equator.

A said, "Maybe not so safe here..."

C said, "But it is a new country, full of potential."

WE got nice tans here. We were enjoying the African sun...

C said I wonder if we'll make it to the end of the trip or are we just on the road to hell. C said she met a lover that was convinced he was on the road to hell...He smoked and took drugs and alcohol and ate too much and had diabetes.

A caught the attention of a famous photographer and loved him and let him take pictures of her.

Few paparazzi photographers but that was a few too many. We bought some of them off but there were still new ones coming. Of course we had our own two photographers.

Our own photographers were known to get the bodyguards to assault the paparazzi under our auspices... Our body guards were big, burly men and violent if necessary.

Our bodyguards were tough but also very clever, and they took good care of us... And of course we usually used local guards as well with guns.

DJIBOUTI

Population 0.7 million

Djibouti city, capital, 0.4 million

French and Arab were mainly spoken here.

C said, "I wish I could speak other languages."

But A said, "If they don't speak English, they are not worth meeting."

C said, "You are such a snob."

And C said, "I met a French citizen of the tiny kingdom. But the affair was 'disappointing.'"

A remarked, "I am usually disappointed, but some times luck is with me. However I met another man of French ancestry and it was good."

C replied, "But that's why we are traveling to have good love experiences."

A said though, "Life for most is boring. To fight boredom is our quest and we will never be satisfied."

"Well spoken," said C.

A said, "This place gives me the feeling that it is on the leading edge and big things will happen in the Middle East."

C said, “Well at one time the Greeks, the Middle East, the Near East and China invented civilization. I can’t understand why they do so poorly today.”

And A said, “I met an white citizen who was a stock dealer for expatriates. He was rich and showed me around with bodyguards of course.”

C said, “It is an obscure country, but refreshingly pure and loving men, at least in my opinion. Unspoiled men.”

SOMALIA

Population: 10 million

Capital city: Mogadishu, 3.5 million

C said, “This country was a challenge and some said it was the most dangerous place in the world.”

A said, “Refugees in Somalia; everybody has heard about them. What a mess Africa is.”

Bodyguards, we had 30 of them, many locals, but we just needed them to guard our hotel and make sure everyone had an AIDS free certificate.

Went to a secret nightclub outside the capital. Amazingly we had 4 friends awaiting our arrival and setting us up.

C met a man who seemed nice at first, but ultimately he was just pretending to be romantic. “Men are tricky,” she said.

A said, "It is thrilling to love in such a dangerous land."

C said, "I think we are crazy. But it can't be helped."

A finally loved a local businessman and C did too.

It wasn't great sex but it was good enough as always.

Piracy off the coast was also well known.

So A and C each dressed as traditional pirates in the nightclub...

We drove some men wild...

REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO (smaller Congo)

Population: 4 million

Brazzaville, 1.3 million

It was the smaller Congo

Abundant diseases of course.

Plenty of body guards 10 of them regulars now (our jet seated only 36).

We met a man who asked us if in fact we were "Western ambassadors?"

A said, "We are the best our countries have to offer. Many men are amazed by us in developing nations, but women's rights are improving slowly."

C met a man who was a scholar, biologist. He said he always feared rejection from white women who he adored. “And I adored and loved him,” said she.

A said, “We are here to bring light to the darkest corners on Earth.”

And A said, “I met a gangster drug runner. He was interesting at least... He didn't care what people thought of him. He said if you are not happy, do something else.”

DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO (large Congo)

DRC

Population 68 million

Kinshasha 7.5 million

Rain in the winter here but we were high and dry as usual.

700 languages. Can you believe that?

Not safe outside the capital... Just like the shoot out at the OK coral...

Shootings, muggings, kidnappings...

Gastro-intestinal and other diseases...

Malaria victims shivering in the heat...

We went to some bars and drank banana beer.

The banana beer made A sick.

Doctor said she had amoebic dysentery. Another guy at the hospital was diagnosed with leprosy. Plenty of malaria victims.

Anyway they gave A medicine in hospital and she recovered towards the end of the week. Then she found a local tour guide on the last day.

C said she met a local man who was totally crazy and told her of the madness of the country. They partied while the country “burned.”

Our friends were there, only 5 of them, but we had a good party all the same

C said, “We are so spoiled. Even here.”

A said, “But there’s no denying that this is the ‘Heart of Darkness.’”

“However,” A said, “It’s been a long time though since I was obsessed with a man. We need to pump up our website and get more interesting men on there.

A added, “And I am tired of loving handsome men with a mediocre brain. I think we should try meet better people.”

C said, “That’s fine by me. Maybe our club members should need to pass a EQ/IQ test.”

Or, said C, “an imagination test.”

CAR (Central African Republic)

Population: 4.3 million

Bangui, the capital, 0.7m

Police here are sinister...

Not safe a safe place by any means

We organized a small get together of 20 people in the afternoon. A and C both hooked up with nice men.

A said, "I met a man who seemed to have known me for years, and I loved him; it was real."

C said, "I met and loved a man who was a black poet from a rich family. I got the royal treatment.

A said, "Who is your perfect lover?" C said, "I would have liked to date Galileo..."

A said, "I've met a number of perfect lovers on this trip and I am learning what is possible for one girl to do. My super perfect lover will come to me before the trip is done, I'm sure... And I will fall in love at least for a day.

C replied, "You are full of surprises."

RWANDA

Population: 9 million

Kigali, capital city 0.7 million

Recent genocide perhaps killed 1 million

C said, “So much madness here. Disease, war, famine. The whole continent is mad.”

A made love with a student who cried when she left.

A said, “Have you ever been cruel to your lover and made them try to commit suicide?”

C replied, “Sometimes the truth kills, I know a few men who killed themselves over me, but there is no hope for it. Let’s face it for some men we are both femmes fatales.”

But A said, “We don’t see many female CEOs and here in Africa women have few rights and little education. So we will donate some money to help the most promising female students, a few million dollars at least, for now... With more to come later.

In any case the more the paparazzi watch us, the more donations we get, even in a country like this.

A said she met a man who had lost an arm in the civil war. But he was a great, intellectual all the same, and a brilliant lover.

C said she met a love who ran an armaments factory. He told her that he was just a middle man between people and the product. And he said, “everyone buys weapons, so it is fair. But he was like a ‘firecracker in bed...’”

“All is fair under the sun,” he said.

BURUNDI

Population 8.5 million

Bjumbura on Lake Tanganyika, population: 0.4 million

Perhaps 300 000 were killed in the recent civil war... Just like in Rwanda...

A stated, "I met a local man who claimed he wanted a transsexual lover."

C stated, "Well I met a man who had a number of wives and children. He was very skilled in the art of love."

As usual we were both very worried about AIDS, we were worried the condoms would not be enough. But the show must go on. Most of our lovers had an AIDS test beforehand so that we could feel sure. Sometimes we loved the safe lover rather than the most interesting lover. But sometimes we had to take a chance with someone who had no AIDS test. And there was a dormant period...

We were living on the edge, that's for sure.

A said one guy wanted to give me children. "I said I would like to but I am busy on the trip. But he took off the condom and came inside me so I had to get a pregnancy test but fortunately the result was negative."

And A said I am going to take more pills to increase my egg count (up to 20 eggs per month) and sell them for a million dollars each when we meet rich Africans. C said, "That's a great idea. But not such a good idea in poor Africa. Maybe in the future you can set up an eggs company making eggs of famous people. In NYC. You could make billions."

And A said, "There are too many foolish people in the world today... We need to upgrade the human race and bring forth homo superior."

C said, “Yes I think the best people have few children, our human race is being watered down.”

CAMEROON

Population 16.5 m

Yaounde 1.1 m capital,

Doula 1.7 m economic center

Some call it “Africa in miniature as there are 200 ethnic groups.” Said C.”
“But the DRC has 600.”

Lot of oil here and economy has been growing for some time...

Nice weather...

A met a brilliant local man who was a sculptor, making traditional African masks and other woodworking. But C wanted him too.

They had it out in the washroom where C gave him up to A for future considerations.

Afterwards they made up and laughed about it. After all the world was their oyster.

C said, “Do you seriously think we are an inspiration to people?”

A said, “We are only two but we have inspired some potential geniuses and that is good.”

A said, “It’s good for them to know that there are people who care about the love... And of course rich men need inspiration too. And we need their money.”

And C said, “I’ve enjoyed the local cuisines here. In particular I ate a lot of meat and rice (cooked by our chef) and kissed the local leader.”

And C said, “I got laid with a fat mayor of a small city. We talked about the problems facing the country which are huge... Seems hopeless,” said the mayor.

C remarked, “A lot of people give up on life and just want to sit around and get fat. Some even prefer eating to loving.”

A said, “There are many fat people everywhere, especially in some parts of Africa.... Diabetes is rampant...”

Viagra keeps them potent even though they are massively fat.

C said I’ll bet these people would like to go into space where there is no gravity. Maybe just like to go to the moon and get away from it all.

A said, “Secret experiments abound, maybe they are already living on the moon...”

C said, “They should change the moon’s name to “LSO,” which stands for “Lunatic Sex Orb.”

A said, “I’d love to make love in low gravity or even no gravity.”

Palm wine and millet beer; we overdid a bit. Potent beverages. C said I swear I got alcohol poisoning. A said maybe some other gastric problem. I hope it goes away, said C. And C said, “I feel completely crazy, like I am not human anymore.”

But finally she went to the doctor who told her it was another case of amoebic dysentery. So she just needed to take pills. She said, “I thought I was going crazy before I saw the doctor...”

A said, “But I think it was just your inner mad self showing its ugly head under the guise of disease.

UGANDA

Population 27.6 m

Kampala 1.2 m capital

70% live on less than $1.25 per day

During Idi Amin’s dictatorship if you didn’t have sex with him he’d cut off your breasts and feed you to the crocodiles

C said, “As Joseph Conrad said it is a Heart of Darkness, the whole region.”

“The horrors the horrors,” said A

All in English...

Gorillas and chimps lived here and C was amused. Not many such creatures left. Her idea was to build a giant new park for them in the southern USA somewhere where they could be protected.

A said, “Why don’t you forget about your anthropology and archaeology and just enjoy love affairs.

C replied, “Our past is where we are today. We mustn’t feel history is bunk as Ford said.

I just want to meet open-minded men... ”

C said, “Yes open-minded men are always interesting, even if they are not that bright.

And A said, “I loved a black crazy man here. I never had crazy sex like that before...”

C said, “I met a local man who said he loved animals, but not people...”

A said, “What a pity. All these people in the world and he would prefer an animal? I can’t believe it. Such a misanthrope.”

ZAMBIA

Population 11.5 m

Capital: Lusaka 1.2 m

People here were poor too, 60% below $1.25 a day...

Here in Africa, there were thousands of African people in our club now...

Sometimes we would just stay at our hotel and chat online. They kept us up to date with their adventures. But most of them considered us to be brave and wild to go all over Africa.

Of course, A found a local black man to love. He was quite rich and threw a party for us, no paparazzi allowed. If the bodyguards saw a digital camera they confiscated it and kicked the offender out of the bar. Still they would get their pictures, one way or another.

A ventured to say, “We are going to change the world before we are done.”

C said, “Why not think big? Everyone must shake their globe shakers...”

C chose a man who had just had his AIDS test, and he was “a horny man.” It wasn’t very good love, “But that’s OK I am getting plenty of good sex on this trip. I can’t complain. She said.

Anyway plenty of English speakers on the trip here; we had a lot of good conversations.

ZIMBABWE

Population 13 million

Harare, the capital, 2 m

70% unemployment

Inflation 1200%.

Median age 18 due to AIDS.

Crime rate is very high.

Nearly all white residents have left...

Kind of a crazy country. A total fiasco.

C met a man who was “a misanthrope,” a clever black man who detested everything. He was kind of refreshing she thought.

C asked him: “How do you feel about magic and love?”

He said, “He was afraid of hypnosis from women. He had a few bad experiences apparently.”

But C said, “True love is magical...”

He said, “Love sucks.”

A said, “It is too dangerous to find love here amongst the blacks, due to AIDS, so I loved a native white tour guide instead. It wasn’t great but it was OK.”

C said, I met an another white man, a young student, who called himself a “dedicated dissident,” He was against the corrupt government. He was also a good lover...

BOTSWANA

Population: 1.6 m

Capital: Gaborone 250 000

Most people in dire poverty with AIDS etc.

Another disaster country...

We had two black interpreters, one for each of us as we talked to the men of power in this nation. Many could not understand why we wanted to come to Botswana, such a poor country.

Here many women worked hard on the farm and men worked in the cities and nailed prostitutes, just like other countries in Africa.

A woman's work is never done.

C said, "I met one of the few remaining whites and he showed me the country and I loved him. He said he'd never had such love at first sight, but it was good," he said.

A said she met a white too and he was an artist painting pictures of horror.... One of the last remaining whites.

C said, "Africa really is a dangerous place. I am glad they get an AIDS test and wear condoms. And I think everyone on our jet needs regular AIDS tests also.

Also I think we need more bodyguards and also henceforth potential lovers need an AIDS test. Our Net friends can see too it that they take the test.

No more taking chances...

MOZAMBIQUE, March 21, 2013

Population: 20 million

Capital: Maputo, 1.8 million people

Portuguese speakers, many of them. But we had 30 friends here to meet us at the club, reserved as always.

Since we had come to Africa and almost all our lovers had AIDS tests and wore condoms, we continued to love with abandon.

But C said, “One of the men I met a man and was terrible, he was so rough and uncaring. And he stole my credit card...”

A said, “I met a man here who stole much of my jewelry and cash while I slept.”

A said, “It was ironic that we were both robbed at the same time. No coincidence?”

But the wine here was good (from Portugal) and the people were friendly.

We both ate too much here as our contacts set us up with fine buffets and luxury dinners... (We had a small gym on the plane)...

MADAGASCAR

Population : 17 million

Capital: Antananarivo, 1.7 million

Poor education here a local was telling us...

C asked A, "How do you feel about your education?"

A replied, "The main thing I learned in university is that most of what they teach is bull shit and incompetence. I am sure glad to get away from that scene.

"Better to teach yourself about the world and read books on your own..." said C.

And A said, "And of course you have to learn to be a great lover."

C said, "It's too bad our French is not better. It would be useful here in Madagascar. But we had our interpreters..."

A said, "I wished I'd studied nothing but languages in university. Spanish, French, Mandarin, Japanese, Arabic... and so on. If you can speak the local tongue in a far off place they will treat you like a prince/princess."

C met a black politician and made love and talked about the country. Not too bad, thought C.

A said I love islands and beaches but I fear skin cancer. She met a well-tanned beach bum and it was good though he didn't speak much English.

C responded, "Skin cancer is seldom fatal."

SOUTH AFRICA

Median age: 24

Population: 49 million

Cape Town 3.2 m

Black slums especially problematic.

Johannesburg was known in the 90's as the murder capital of the world

Some say South Africa has the AIDS highest rate in the world, at 28%.
And it is probably more.

Everyone here knows a relative or friend who has been killed in the violence. That's Africa...

Check in your gun at the disco, and so on.

So at our party we also had everyone searched for weapons. And only our friends here (67 of them) were invited...

A posited, "I can love a good man anytime, anywhere."

C replied, "I need the right environment."

Anyway we met some Boers and they showed us around their villages, wineries and farms. It was a good time, and we both got laid in the end.

A said, "Lovers in dangerous situations are exciting lovers."

C said, "I prefer less frantic loves.."

Our bodyguards protected us anyway. In addition to our regular 8 we hired 20 more just for South Africa.

LESOTHO

Population 2.3 million

Maseru capital population, 0.3 million

About 50% of women in the cities are HIV positive...

High literacy rate however. But that just goes to show you how education can't solve all problems.

Of course famous here was the King and his famous harem and luxury goods...

A said, "Well here we are off the beaten track, a strange place to find love."

The leader of Lesotho wanted to love us but we declined.

Anyway we had a party including a dozen of our followers from the website.

A said to C, "I think we both drink too much but we seem to find fun everywhere."

C said, "So many women live in misery in Africa. I guess their lovers don't understand them..."

A said, "These people should opt for regular AIDS tests and have open-marriages..."

Anyway, C met a lover who was a tribal chief and partied with him...

And A met a poor black man who was very sexy... He was good in bed, but boring in conversation. But A asked, "What else could I do?"

C said, "It is tough to get laid in a small country like this, but the fact that we have done it safely augers well for the future. We are unstoppable."

SWAZILAND

Population 1.1 million

Mbabane, capital city, population 110 000

44% of those 15-39 have AIDS.

28% in total have AIDS, just behind South Africa...

Many hopeless cases...

Give anti AIDs drugs to everyone. Manufacture them cheaply here if only there was a will to do so by Western governments.

Many deny it is so bad here and claim their country is wonderful

Here C and I (A) made love to two of our black online friends...

Two condoms, plus the AIDS test each we said.

SEYCHELLES

Population: 85 000

Capital: Victoria, 25 000

Delightful islands, in the Indian Ocean.

A said, “Many of my romances have been on beaches. It is a fun atmosphere on beaches.”

But A said, “No point looking back. We all have to look to the future. Maybe some people don’t think about the future...”

C said, “But these off the beaten track beach resorts satisfy me in every way...”

A said, “Yeah mass tourism really sucks. Many people just travel to get to a cheap and warm place and don’t care to meet the local people.”

C said, “I met a man who was a diver for seafood. He prepared me a tasty seafood banquet.”

A said, “I met a guy who had a sailboat. We made love out at sea though I was nervous about hitting nets or other boats...”

C said, “Yeah I have a phobia about sharks. I know shark attacks are extremely rare but I am still afraid.

A mentioned, “That original “Jaws” writer, Peter Benchley, regretted demonizing sharks in his old age.

C said, “In my youth we went to a drive in theater one time and when the Jaws III’s shark attacked my mom pushed my head down so I couldn’t see the screen.

In any case the two heroines chartered a fishing boat and caught a lot of fish, many were strange to us...

And we were wined and dined and had never been so happy.

C found an archaeologist who she loved and she said, “I don’t want to leave.”

A said, “No matter what there are plenty of other perfect lovers for you to meet. Invite him to the party in NYC in 2014...”

The trip was 3.5 years in total. 196 countries for 1 week each.

And A for her part said she loved an white resident who “gave her the usual wine, dinner and tour.” “He was also good.” She said...

NAMIBIA

Population: 2.0 million

Capital, Windhoek, 0.4 million

English is commonly spoken.

Dry country.

Economy of uranium and minerals and agriculture.

A little dangerous, so our 8 bodyguards hired others to help them at the parties.

A said, "Maybe we should have just stayed on the 'beaten track.'"

C said, "We of course could've done the whole thing Online, but we are both old-fashioned... In a way."

A said, "I am bored with Internet dating. Best to meet face to face and enjoy the cultural differences and the sex."

"Here in Namibia, there is not much nightlife to suit me," said C.

Incidentally said A, "I met a mysterious black lover who claimed to be a witch doctor. It was interesting love, unpredictable love."

C said the good men probably go to South Africa to work, but people here are impoverished. In any case she said, "I couldn't find love myself here... Until I met a man who was a black executive for uranium production. He was good and the love was torrid for a few days."

A said, "Torrid, whirlwind romances are the best, where you know you have only a few dates, people often reveal all their secrets and try their best to live for today..."

ANGOLA

Population 15 million

Luanda, the capital, 4 million

Oil boom here making the country richer and richer...

Many still speak Portuguese here but there were a lot of English speakers as well.

C asked the richest man we could find, a white citizen, "How do you feel about feminine women?"

He said, "All loving is good loving..."

C said, "These days women need to be tougher than ever."

He said, "Love is just a game. It is yours to win or lose."

A said, "All rich people are spoiled. Us included."

He said, "In 30 years many Africans will be rich due to better education."

C said, "That's quite a prediction. With all the disease and war and famine... I don't see Africa getting rich for another 50 years at least."

He said, "Almost all the African economies are growing now and they seem to have "turned the corner.""

A loved him and C found love with a politician who told her Angola's future is bright. Many optimists here," said A.

MALAWI

Population 13million

Capital: Lilongwe, 6million

Regarding AIDS some say it is worse than South Africa. The worst in the world...

C said, "Do you think lovers here get what they deserve?"

A said, "Use condoms of course in love..."

"But it is not a fair world, but if you keep trying you might succeed..."

"But it is a crazy world in which no one gets what they want," A said.

C said, "To change the world even in one small way is brilliant. Try your best. But it helps to have power..."

A said, "We are becoming rich and powerful and many people have donated to our cause as we travel through the Third World."

C said, "I think when it is all over in 2014, we can raise a lot of money for our charities in Africa after that. Big name celebrities can change the world."

A said, "There are many poor, but if we could only educate them the problems would be solved. And all they need is computer access to teach themselves.

Old used computers would be fine.

C said, "I met a black man who was very young and had his AIDS certificate to show, but he was not a good lover. In fact he loved anyone he could. One day he would get AIDS..."

MALI

Population 12 million

Capital, Bamako, 2 million

4th poorest country in the world...

Literacy is only 19%, and that is one of the main reasons for poverty in the country.

Most people here are Muslim.

They practice their religion, but they are rather tolerant...

Alcohol is freely available, although most Muslims here do not partake...

We felt safe here for us so our usual 8 bodyguards were enough.

Drought and locusts were prevalent here. And of course AIDS and other diseases.

A said, "I met a woman traveling with high heel shoes."

"How uncomfortable," said A

C said, "It's the ugliest part of the female body: the feet."

"What will be your epitaph for your African journey?" The woman asked C.

C replied, "I hope I will be able to say that I left no stone unturned in my desire for adventure, and that I was able to help some people on the way."

C said, "I met an Arab who lived here and he was surprisingly good in bed."

A said, "I loved a white local doctor who told me many nightmares about this country."

C wanted to visit the famous desert city of Timbuktu, but we gave it a pass.

CHAD

Population 10 million

Capital city, N'Djamena 0.8 million

More than half Muslim (don't act so devoutly) and one third Christian

C said, "She met a perverted macho man."

"He was playing Village People songs. It was before our time. A few members of the band died of AIDS."

This man was weird and liked S&M. He told us he was a "genius of love."

Most S&M people are gay, but he claimed to be bisexual.

C asked him, "Do you feel women here need to be liberated?"

He answered, “The more women are emancipated, the more they can be interesting. Some men want their women to shut up and work, but seldom allow them to speak.”

A said, “Men should respect women more in this whole continent of Africa.”

Some local Net friends were all in agreement with our position. And men shouldn't make the first move either, they mostly agreed.

A made love with the S&M guy, the whole thing was strange.

C said, “I met a local French man and had a brilliant whirlwind of a love affair. He was really good,” she said. “I have never had a bad French lover.”

NIGER

Population: 13 million.

Niamey, capital, population 1 million.

Nice weather...

A lot of French was spoken here so we hired two interpreters...

Although it was Muslim mostly, there were a number of nightclubs in the hotels, so we rented a hotel party room...

C said, “I got to talking with a man about romance. And he asked me did I know anyone who killed themselves for love?”

And C said, “Yes a few.”

And he said, “He knew a guy who killed himself on Valentine’s day.

And he said, “The best love affairs are the most passionate. Life can be a tragedy though...”

But C said, “Some people lose it in love.”

A said, “I met a man who said he was honest and true, but of course he was boring. And in any case he couldn’t show an AIDS certificate...”

And C said, “Yes sometimes being simple and honest can be dull, but not always. Sometimes you got to tell how it is, and you can do amazing spins on the truth.

Anyway we had 20 friends waiting for us here.

A got laid with a man called, “Lion,” who was a notable soccer player here. But she didn’t go to see him play.

C met up with a local black politician and loved him. He said with people like you in your country I can understand why people want to go there.

MAURITANIA

Population 3.5 million

Capital, Noukachott, 1 million

French and Arabic were widely spoken, but our friends (all 9 of them here) spoke English.

Here they had a caste system and practiced female genital mutilation and most were Islamic...

On an off day, C and A were sitting in a café.

C said, “Are you disappointed in Africa?”

A replied, “Yes and no. But there seems to be a lot of passionate men around...”

C said, “All the same Africa can use our money that we donate to them for educational purposes. Civilization depends on a stable education system.”

Just like 50 years ago, people said women could not be great intellectuals. Now they say that about blacks... But it is hard to succeed with no education in a dirt poor country.

BURKINA FASO, June 21, 2023

Population: 16 million

Ougadougou, capital, 1.4 million

It was another poor country with 50% less than a dollar a day.

Literacy 13 % only; no wonder they are so poor.

Only a handful of doctors...

A local man told us, "The religion is half Christian half Muslim, 100% animist."

Strange disease for one of our body guards who had "Coca cola" colored piss also with a fever but finally he was well again just before it was time to leave.

A said, "Books and TV teach us about romance, but here in Africa, everything must be learned from experience. Here the best thing to do is to try and go beyond the tourist trail and find love..."

C said, "But even here some people set their standards too high."

A said, "Everywhere people love a complicated love affair."

C said, "I loved a black teacher, and he showed me the country. And he said we need more teachers from rich countries to come and help us learn to teach ourselves."

A met a white local, American trained doctor who said more doctors should come to Africa and help the poor rather than going to America or some such place. He was dedicated to doing an important service.

EQUATORIAL GUINEA

Population 0.8 million

Capital: Malabo 120 000. Malabo is on an island whereas most of the country is on the mainland of Africa.

Very corrupt police, we were warned. So to set up our party we had to bribe the officials, which was a common thing for us all over Africa.

A met a man who said he didn't believe in modern love and he would like to go back to the old ways. He was so conservative in a wild continent.

A asked C, "What do you think about modern love?"

C replied, "People have given up on the concept. People less and less claim to be searching for love. Sex rules."

A said, "But we live in the most romantic era ever..."

C met a man who was unemployed and claimed to be a dissident. She said, "He was fine for awhile, but then he got so serious with me so I dumped him immediately."

A replied, "Good work"

"As for myself," A said, "I met a rich police officer and we had a good time, but he was no doubt corrupt."

C said, "You have to take what you can get in a place like Africa..."

GABON

Population 1.6 million

Libreville 0.7 million

Good nightlife here.

We met a French woman who was wearing a “magic bra.”

C asked her, “How do your lovers feel when they discover you’ve tricked them..

She said, “Men are so shallow; and in any case I just want a one night stand.”

C met a charming French citizen who wined and dined her and then romanced her.

A met a local black man who “had a lot of power,” like most black men elsewhere in Africa...

IVORY COAST

19 million

Yamoussoukro capital, 230 000

Abidjan de facto capital, 2.8 million

Muslims and Christians mixed together...

Many French speakers...

A met a gigolo, and asked him, "What does love feel like for you?"

He replied, "It is a euphoric feeling, just like taking heroin."

But he was stable and affable, so A loved him.

A asked him about partner swapping and he said "it was good."

But C wasn't interested. She said she didn't want my "sloppy seconds."

C for her part met another man of French ancestry and they had a few wild nights together. He was a struggling writer who was born in Africa and tried to write for "different experiences. But he said most experiences were bad. He got sick several times of various diseases and couldn't meet many educated people here. No education, no fun, he said.

But one of our pilots got malaria here, but fortunately he was on the malaria pills so he recovered after a few days. So we went on without him and he rejoined us in a week.

A said, "You can never be too vigilant about diseases, here in Africa..."

We all went for an AIDS test but we were all HIV negative, so that was a relief. But we worried about the dormant period of the disease...

BENIN

Population: 8 million

Capital: Porto Novo, population 300 000

Cotonou 800 000

25% Christian and almost 25% Muslim. Rest are mostly indigenous religions.

Bit dangerous on the beach, but we went anyway. A had a lover at night in the sand, but the problem was the sand “got into everything.”

A local black man we met on the beach said, “You’ve got to ride out the storms of this modern world...”

A said, “Any port in a storm...”

And he said, “It’s bad if you are so addicted to love you can’t be without it.”

A said, “I know what you mean.”

C said “We have similar adventures to this beach bum even though we are traveling the whole world. After a while you know too much and life holds few surprises...”

A said, “But I feel every country can be surprising if you meet men who are different.”

C said, “I think we are being worn out by our heavy travel schedule and parties...”

C said she met a black Christian minister and loved him. He was quite dedicated and had lived here all his life, helping the poor and sick. We gave him a couple million to work with his charity.

We were now getting millions of donations from all over the world. People said we would soon be the biggest NGO (non governmental organization) in the world. We were good poster girls for the charity and convinced a lot of people to open their minds..

TOGO

Population, 5.5 million

Lome, capital city 0.8 million

30% Christian 20% Muslim, 50% Indigenous...

Many French speakers again, but few tourists.

A loved a man who claimed to be single, later she found out he had a number of mistresses and a wife.

C said, "Did you ever deceive your lover?"

A said, "No, but many are surprised by my true colors."

A met a young man of 16 who asked us, "How to live his life?"

A said, "Find a way to travel and see the world."

He was too young for A, but A met another man, a Togo artist who made masks and other art using pyroengraving, who gave her good love.

His art was "cool."

His artist friend hooked up with C and a good time was held by all.

C remarked, "Artists of different kinds are the best lovers."

SIERRA LEONE

Population: 7 million

Capital: Freetown, 1 million

Lots of rain here.

Diamonds and minerals make the economy go...

Population was 60% Muslim, 30% Christian

Dancing country, many dance troupes.

A said "Of course we both hate dancing. But we like the ceremonious costumes and traditional instruments."

Many people recognized us on the street, it was getting so bad we decided to just stick with our rented nightclubs and go nowhere else outside our jet...

C said, "How do you feel about being a celebrity?"

A said, "I like it just fine."

C said but once we are out of Africa the shit is going to hit the fan and we will be immensely popular with the tabloids...

A said, "How do you feel about all these fat people in Africa along with many starving.?"

C replied, "I don't mind loving fat men or skinny men, but some people here really need food and medicine. We will give generously to Africa once our trip is over. We will teach people to think for themselves, that is our goal."

A met a black man who said “Let those with AIDS die, so they can’t spread the disease further.”

A said, “It is a delicate situation that’s for sure.”

C said, “I met a skinny man he told me he was dying of AIDS. I gave him some money so he could take the medicine and live on. He said a lot of good people get the disease. C said, “You need to wear condoms. And not infect anyone else.”

A said she loved a fat black man who said, “Many people here are ignorant, and even in this day and age they don’t worry so much about getting AIDS...”

He was no doubt taking viagra or some such thing....

NIGERIA

Population 140 million

Abuja, capital, 1 million

Lagos, 18 million

Oil reforms and GDP growth, like most African countries the GDP is growing but most are below the poverty line.

Half Christian half Muslim divide. This has presented some problems for the country. Some of the Muslims want Sharia Islamic law...

In any case we had 20 friends here, 12 were men and they all wanted to show us the town. We chose two very attractive young men...

C said, "What is your sex fantasy, these days?"

A answered, "A man with an unlimited sex drive. I carry Viagra with me to help in the experience."

C said, "I didn't realize you did that. I do it too."

But C said, "My fantasy is to be the only girl among hundreds of men..."

And C said, "I guess there is no such thing as bad sex."

A said, our nightclub here was good everyone with their papers in order...

C said, "We are the happiest women in the world."

A responded, "Yes, 2 women have never had such fun as us in history perhaps."

In any case A met a "fantasy writer" whose fantasies were purely sexual. I enjoyed hearing his porn stories, many of which were set in the future.

C met a guy in Lagos who was from a small town and had a wife there. But C made love with him anyway.

A said, "Feeling guilty?"

C said, "You have to take what is yours in this cruel world."

A replied, "I've never seen you like this, why such militancy?"

C answered, "I need to be more aggressive and find more and better men. I can hardly wait to get out of Africa. I want educated men, genius men."

LIBERIA

Population 35 million

Monrovia, the capital 1.2 million

War damaged buildings

Many people here lost loved ones in the civil wars....

But as usual we rented a small nightclub for our 15 local friends and ourselves... with our jet now at about 20 people also.

Good night clubs here

C said, "Do you think love is overrated?"

A said, "Most people don't spend enough time searching for love, but love can often be so disappointing."

C said, "I live only for love and could never settle down with one man."

A claimed, "I am the same of course."

"Freedom," "Liberia/Liberty," A said, "That's what life is about."

So A loved a politician who told her Liberia's civil wars are over and that he wanted to be part of the reconstruction...

C said, "I loved a crazy black man who talked to me about revolution."

“But,” C said, “This revolutionary had many violent ideas and said it is the only way to achieve lasting peace.”

MAURITIUS

We tried to avoid the paparazzi here. Make sure they don't get in to our nightclubs. But tiny cameras are easily smuggled in. It was here that the paparazzi made a strong attempt to follow us...

C met a man who was Christian and had moral scruples, but he loved her all the same.

C asked A, “What do you think about morality in this world today?”

A responded by saying, “It is always important to fight the good fight, but morality is mostly antiquated thinking of a long lost era. Women were virtually enslaved in almost all countries back then. Morality was just foolishness.”

C said, “Do you think a place like this is a romantic background?”

A said, “You know how I feel. You know background doesn’t matter to me; I am not romantic. And I don’t care about the weather.”

C said, “But you can make your own background anywhere with music, food, architecture and so on.”

C said, “Personally I’d like to ride in one of those rockets into space. Zero gravity sex. I have got the money, why don’t I go?”

A said, “Maybe we should both go, after all we are traveling everywhere.”
A added, “Yes let’s have our final stop in space. Maybe they will give us a free trip...”

GHANA

Population: 24 million.

Accra the capital, 2 million.

English is widely spoken here.

70% Christian 15% Muslim.

We watched a soccer game. Why not?

A said, “Do you think life is like a game of soccer, or some other game?”

C said, “Certainly sport mirrors life and is a substitute for war. But these days it is video sports that capture the imagination of the youth. Maybe one day soon no one will play real soccer.”

A said, "It seems to me like African men really like blondes..."

C said, "We seem to be a hit wherever we go. Bigger and bigger."

But A said, "When I was in high school many men called me a dumb blonde. If only they could see me now (in fact they probably have heard of us, but we changed our names (known as "C" and "A") and wear sunglasses in public."

In any case C loved a soccer player who was in fine shape and he told her there's not much hope for many of his countrymen, but many aspire to be a pro soccer player.

A said, "I think that's lame. It is just a foolish game."

A added, "I met a charming business man outside of our group, but he wore condoms. He gave a generous donation to our cause as well."

GUINEA

Population 10 million

Conakry, capital, 2 million

Lots of French spoken again...

85% Muslim, 8% Christian.

Good nightclubs, despite the majority Muslim population.

Like many other West African nations it had abundant local music that we didn't care for.

Don't travel at night without bodyguards...

There was a chimp park. We went to see the chimps...

A said, "People should love more like the chimps.

C said we need to cure sex diseases first.

A said, "Are you really so afraid of AIDS?"

C spoke, "Aren't you.?"

A said "I feel safe with condoms and AIDS tests that our lovers got."

A met a philosopher and asked him, "What is the best love philosophy you have ever heard?"

He said, "It's just a simple feeling for me anyways... Pure attraction. No sense making something that doesn't exist. Ancient cultures mostly featured arranged marriages... There was no love. And there is no love today."

A said, "But I mean do you try to improve yourself or learn from your mistakes or like one kind of woman over another?"

He said, "I am close to totally open-minded, just like you."

A said, "It is strange to talk about this after all this time, but I feel I am changing to be more open-minded, as much as possible. Any love can be good."

C met a chimp park ranger and loved him. He was also out of our group, so she took a chance.

A said, “People say if you have unprotected sex, each time you have a 1 in 1000 chance of getting AIDS if your partner is infected. But anal sex increases the chances dramatically due to bleeding.”

C told him that “Most people today don’t much care for nature. Look at all those polluted cities polluting the water and the air and the soil. Cutting down all the trees and so on.”

He said, “The world is changing. Soon we will have 100% battery powered cars and use nuclear fuel if we have to. Even here.”

GUINEA-BISSAU, September 21, 2013

Population 2 million.

Bissau is capital, 400 000.

We only had 5 followers here so we just arranged for lunch. But we found all 3 men were not up to our high standards so we went elsewhere.

C said, “I met and loved man who was clever and attractive but he wanted me to let him do all the talking. He was a bore after a day of his endless boring stories. At least he wore condoms like all my previous lovers in Africa.

Then C met a man who was a government worker. Just an ordinary nice guy... He was also outside our group, however. But he put on two condoms...

A found a white fisherman, and they went out all 4 to have a party at sea. Drink and catch fish.

The fisherman was not as bright as our usual lovers, but he was a lot of fun and we were careful not to hurt his feelings

Afterwards, A said, "Sometimes ordinary men are the best of men."

Nightclubs were fine here.

On the streets two men came up to us and offered $1 million dollars for a week of sex with the two of them. They were attractive, but it didn't seem right. We didn't like them enough and money was no problem for us.

C asked A, “Back in your younger days, did you ever have sex for money?”

A responded, “I probably would have, but I always had a lot of lovers.”

C said, I never have either.

So instead we met two fishermen and made sweet love with them. We were inspired by our previous trip to Guinea-Bissau to date fishermen. They were strong lovers...

Malaria. A got it here and it set us back one week. We had to wait for her to recover for a week. But we made up for the time in the following countries...

One of the pilots and 2 of the bodyguards got hepatitis so we sent them home for a few weeks to recover.

It was difficult to get an appropriate pilot so when we left we just had one pilot.

Then a bodyguard caught malaria and we sent him to hospital to rendez-vous at a later date. So now we had 7 bodyguards.

We had a nightclub of 25 people waiting for us and it was a good party but outside two of our bodyguards got in a shoot out and both were injured but not critically

C said, “Many people think Africa is a romantic place, but it sure is dangerous.”

A said, in her fever, “It’s a thrill for many I guess.”

C asked A what was the biggest lie she’d ever heard in romance. A replied, “One guy told me he was the King of Love but actually he was a lousy lover.”

And A said, “I had met a local man who was great at foreplay, but she had to admit she liked instant gratification more.”

C said, “Of course if they brag about it they are usually no good.”

C added, “I prefer the strong, silent types.”

A replied, “Are you kidding? If a man doesn’t entertain us we dump them right away.

But C said, “Still sometimes there is too much talking, not enough loving...”

A said, “Well we still have 10 years of fertility left. Plenty of time when the trip is over. And we have been selling a lot of eggs along the way...”

C said, “Ever have an abortion?” A said, “No and you?” C replied twice in my teens. I feel I have got to have at least two to gain absolution.”

C met a Portuguese white resident of the country. He was a cook and C enjoyed being wined and dined. It was a break from our personal chef.

A met a Portuguese speaking white man who told her he hated dancing. “You are the man for me,” she said.

Capital Praia.

Again Portuguese was the main language.

A said, "These islands are heavenly, but to be honest, I tire of beaches."

C met a "sensitive man," but she, "broke his heart," by dumping him."

C asked, "How often do you make your lover cry?"

A replied, "Of course lots of times; you know that..."

A said, "I hate it though. I feel I am using them."

C responded, "Some men are so weak emotionally. Women are stronger emotionally without a doubt."

A said, I met a tour guide and loved him. He was very worldly having traveled abroad to many countries. He said a lot of people have left but the tourists that come here are often quite interesting since the islands are so remote.

Cruise ships we avoided as they were too touristy, too cliquey.

So we flew between destinations.

The islands were all much alike, catering to mostly American tourists...

But some were quite remote.

C said it was a shame we couldn't go to places like Puerto Rico, but it was not fully independent so it was off limits for us.

CUBA

Population 12 million

Havana, capital, 2.2 million

Colonial architecture, not many new buildings, nor many new cars. Most of the cars were from the 50s...

Cigars, many people smoked...

And we drank rum daqueries with rum, tasty. Earnest Hemingway drank them when he lived here.

Pickpockets are common...

Castro wouldn't face an election but claimed to be the man of the people...

Best people leave here , leaving the country a basket case.

Some men even prostitute their wife to gain USD.

C said, "Do you notice the slow pace of life here?"

A said, "I think life is like a race but sooner or later you die and lay frozen on the race course for all to see."

C said, "The important thing is to have a good time for as long as you can."

A said, "Yes, but there are winners and there are losers..."

Later...

C said, "Many people buy cheap clothes here, but I don't think men care so much what their women wear."

A answered, "Yes a sexy girl looks good in anything."

A met a Cuban man who would do anything for cash. “He showed me around and we made sweet love.”

C met a cigar smoking keyboard musician. The music was bad but he was interesting all the same. Sometimes a failed artist is a noble figure.

HAITI

Population 8 million

Capital, Port au Prince, 2.5 million

Desperately poor with high crime, still recovering from the earthquake of 2010...

Creole French here but resorts speak English

Resorts are safe but the rest of the country is mad and violent.

C met a man who said he was a great lover.

C was curious and tried him out and he was not bad, but no AIDS certificate.

C said, “Do you think a high sex drive is a curse for some people?”

A responded, “No. It is a sign of virility and strength and keeps you highly amused all day.”

C said, “We have plenty of sex but we don’t need more.”

A said “I met a politician who “regaled me with parties for a few days until I was sick of him... It was sublime however for a while,” she said. C met and loved a friend of his, another politician...

“But,” A added, “My man was totally corrupt and while he partied most people were dirt poor. It was the poorest nation in the Western hemisphere.”

The two of us stuck to the resorts and rented a club which anyone who had a few dollars could come to. We were worried about AIDS but we each loved a young university student with an AIDS test to show. Literacy here is only about 50%, hard to find an educated man here in the resorts.

Our bodyguards wanted to go to Port au Prince, but we vetoed that.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Population: 9 million

Santo Domingo, the capital, 2.4 million

A dangerous place also.

We each had a cigar and watched a baseball game where we met two good lovers who were ordinary people in every way. But we loved them all the same.

C wanted to visit the oldest church in Western hemisphere.

A said, “I’m getting kind of bored. Why don’t we try something unusual?”

C said, “I can’t imagine this trip being any more exciting.”

And C added, “What about scuba sex... Or go to the mental asylum and pick a lover...”

A said, “Yes what we need are crazy men. Hard to find a good, crazy man.”

JAMAICA

Population 3 million

Kingston, the capital, 0.8 million

“Reggae music is ‘boring’” said A

And the country was very dangerous.

Resorts were again safe however.

C said, “I would like to go outside the resorts but it is just too dangerous. In any case we were only here for a week. Can’t go everywhere...”

So our nightclub was for only those with money or artistic ability, and we had a good time listening to classic and alternative rock music.

Lots of kids on the streets, pickpockets or drug users and pushers etc.

Some kids have no hope.

But the birth rate is so high despite all the deaths...Especially from AIDS.

A said, "It is very hard for a woman to succeed in such a scenario."

C said, "Should a woman sacrifice her career for kids? Maybe now we say no, but when it happens maybe we will say yes."

C said, "Do you think love and marriage change people for the better?"

A answered, "Living your life changes you, but many are not changed for the better by marriage and kids."

C said I met a drummer who drummed for me in his band. "I didn't like his band but I liked him and loved him with plenty of marijuana..."

A said, "I hooked up with a marijuana dealer later in the week and enjoyed the drugs and love, too."

BAHAMAS

Population 360 000

Bridgetown 80 000

Nassau 200 000, the capital

We nearly missed a large typhoon and had nice weather... Lots of nice islands here in this country.

A met a man who used her for sex and then left her...

A said, "Do you think you should give more than you take in romance?"

C said, "Most people say it is give and take, but actually both are usually taking as much as they can from one another. You use him and he uses you."

A said, "I am not so sure. If you really like a guy you want to please him."

C answered, "You have to please him in a way that is suitable for you, a way that you enjoy as well."

A replied, "Of course some people are driven completely mad by trying to please their lover."

C met and loved a surfer guy who had a strong intellect and lived for the day. He said "Life is like surfing. You ride high and then you hit the ground, but tomorrow is another day."

ANTIGUA AND BARBUDA

Population: 87 000

St. Johns, Antigua is the capital, 25 000.

C said, "I think I am in love with a man (the skipper of a boat). But he is a challenge as he is happily married."

A said, "Only you can decide if you want to show an interest in him."

C said, "I'd hate to ruin someone's marriage."

A responded, "Then be discreet about it, that's all."

Finally she did, and they remained lovers for the rest of the week long cruise which stopped at many small harbors.

A met a man who was a retired nuclear physicist. It was good to talk to an intelligent man. They are hard to find. He took her out in his own yacht and they partied hard. And made love finally.

DOMINICA

Population 80 000

English widely spoken

We had a hurricane hit us, while we stayed in Roseau , the capital, 16 000...

A said, "Roseau reminds me of the famous French philosopher, Rousseau."

A said, "Man is born free but everywhere he is in chains."

C stated, “In many of these poor countries young women sacrifice their life to marry a rich foreigner who could give money to their family.”

A said, “And why not? Live like a rich woman...”

C said, “Of course, you and I are already rich.”

A said, “What are we going to do when the world trip is over?”

C answered, “I might set up a charity and work in Africa, India or some poor needy place.”

A said, “I have no idea what I can do for an encore.”

Anyway C hooked up with a white man whose family had lived there for some generations. He was owner of a hotel. It was nice to have an intelligent conversation in English. She said, “I was kind of sick of talking to people through my interpreter... Which often happened...”

And A said, “We need to promote English speaking, it makes the world so much easier.”

Everyone can just learn one more language (English)...and communicate with everyone.

And A loved with a marijuana dealer. And got stoned for the whole week. “It was grand,” she said.

GRENADA

Population 10, 000

St. George's, the capital

Most famous for the US attack during the Reagan era... due to communists here...

C said, "I don't mean to kiss and tell, but I met a dynamite local man who caressed me and loved me like I had known him my entire life."

A replied, "I am jealous."

And A said, "It's a pleasant place, but not many young locals to choose from. I finally found one; I slept with a white guy whose family was originally from the UK several generations ago."

C said, "These Caribbean islands are all much alike with too many American tourists and not much else. And the tourists are cliquy and conservative..."

A said, "Life is what it is, not easy to change it."

C replied, "What if we could change the world and teach more people to think deeply..."

A said, "I should think that would be a disaster."

C responded, "It's worth a try anyway."

ST. LUCIA, December 21, 2023

Population 170 000

Castries, capital: 50 000

C said, upon disembarking here, said she was “really horny.”

A said, “Why do most women reach their sexual peak at 30, not 16 like men.”

C said, “It takes women some time before they know what they want.”

A said, I think it is biological. Women age like a fine wine.”

We met a local who got plastic surgery to try and look like Jesus.

“What is the future of brotherly love?” asked C

He said, “I fully believe it will happen some day.”

“The world is changing, people are better and better educated and so I think more nice and friendly,” said C

A said, “Actually the better people are educated, the less friendly they become, in my opinion.”

Anyway A laid “Jesus” and C laid one of his close followers. Brotherly love we said , “is good.”

Afterwards, A said, “It’s a crazy world.”

C said, “It is crazy but you have to deal with it and not run away...”

A said, “We have only one life, but best to enjoy it to the full. We are setting a good example for future women, I think. So many women don’t have anyone to look up to... It’s always been a man’s world.”

ST. VINCENT AND THE GRENADINES

Population: 122 000

Kingston, 30 000, capital

Deserted islands suitable for our parties

We invited our 15 local guests and the plane crew to party on a desert island.
It was great.

One of the locals was telling us, “Lies make the world go round.”

And A said, “Who lies more, men or women?”

He said, “Men probably lie more as they are more likely to have more than one lover.

Anyway we all got drunk and had a whale of a time.

One of the locals asked us if we were “alcoholics?”

A replied, “We drink enough to maximize the amount of fun we have. Only this and nothing more.”

A and C both made love with very young black men of 18 years old. It was pleasant and the men were virile. But of course they had their AIDS tests...

A’s lover said, “Women like you are inspirational.”

C says, “Many men say that when we are done with them. I am glad to be of service.

ST. KITTS

Population 43 000

Basseterre, capital 13 000

C said, “I had a dream last night, I dreamed every man in the world was in love with me. And I was a Queen wearing a mask.”

A said, “Well certainly most people we meet love us, but not all. Of course if they don’t love us properly, we dump them automatically. And we mask our true personality from many men...”

Here on St. Kitt’s, we went to a crystal meth./ecstasy party. It was highly enjoyable we laughed and sang by the campfire. One local had a guitar and played while we sang rock classics.

He was really good so we invited him on our journey, and he readily acquiesced. His job would be to organize parties and play the guitar while on the jet and so on. So now we had two musicians on board.

He said he was ambitious like us in having many love affairs.

C said, “What’s the connection between greed and love?”

A said, “Greed makes the world turn. Greed is good.”

A added, "I met a man who was a singer in a rock band. The band was lousy but he was a good lover..."

C made love with him on the plane several times. But A wanted him too so he acquiesced to that.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO

Population 1.4 million

Port of Spain, capital, Trinidad 58 000

We enjoyed classic rock and romantic restaurants with friends of friends.

And here our friends really did a good job to hide us from the photographers and we felt that we could relax.

"Quaint little town, Port of Spain," said C.

A said, "I don't like Caribbean music with the reggae and the kettle drums."

C said, "All music is good."

A said, "People are prisoners of their own culture."

C said, "Yes culture can turn black into white and good into bad."

A said, "I feel this is our quest to get people to forget about their culture."

C said she met “A black rocker who was just like Hendrix or Kravitz. It was a refreshing change from all the reggae and such.” C said, “I wish I’d been a rock star.”

A said, “Yeah it is quite the life with everyone loving you. But we are destined to be the equivalent of rock stars. Men will do anything to gain our love...”

And our popularity is building. Just wait till we get back to North America...

And A said, “I met and loved an artist who did traditional wood working. As they say better to trust a man who works with his hands....”

TONGA

Population: 110 000

Nuku'alofa 40 000, capital on Tongatapu island

English was the language of the day and this was refreshing...

C met a cross dressing man... He seemed obsessed with his sexuality....

He said, Transvestites are more and more common... Everyone has a gay streak in them," said he. But C ran away from him and his no doubt strange love.

Anyway, "We were in Nuku... And we talked with the men here about global warming."

Finally we got an audience with assistants to the "King of Tonga."

The king had said he was worried about global warming.

C said, no point in worrying. You can always go elsewhere...

But the man said, "This is our land and heritage."

C said to A, "What do you worry about?"

"I worry about getting old and losing my sex drive. I hope they can improve estrogen absorption of the body."

And A said, "But of course old men often have young lovers; why don't we?"

And A said, "Life is changing; that's for sure, but whereas old men will take any comely young woman, women are more particular."

C said, "Yes, it's true that women have better standards than men."

C replied, "Of course, many men have no standards at all."

Our co-pilot said, "It's good to love everyone."

A asked, "Do you need to be cruel to be kind?"

C answered, "Too many men are spoiled, what they need is an eye-opener."

A said, "It is women's nature to spoil their mate."

C said, "But a place like this has a lot of free love for us tourists."

A said, "But I don't like the hair of Polynesians... They should shave it off..."

Both C and A met two local islanders who threw a party in their honor. And it was good loving...

FIJI

Population: 850 000

Suva, area is 90 000

Nadi area is 31000

C said, "Hard to believe that these loving people were once cannibals... And until the Europeans came there were no mosquitoes."

"Do you think this is paradise?" said A

C said "It is just like the Garden of Eden, only no one wants to live that way anymore. It is too dull."

C replied, It's nice, but I really prefer big cities with big city thinkers. But there are a lot of interesting yachties here.

C said, "I met a local man who was addicted to cigarettes. Not very glamorous but he was a good lover... But his fingers were yellow from the way he held his cigarettes."

A said, "Yeah smoking cigarettes are a turn off, but the 'love grass' is just the opposite."

C said, "I get the impression smokers have a kind of disdain for life, or maybe a love/hate idea of life."

A said, "People are nervous these days and need a smoke to calm them down."

C said, "I can easily predict new generations will do more drugs like ecstasy and less and less smoking of cigarettes."

A said, "Anyway I dated an East Indian restaurant owner who cooked several meals for me personally. Some Fijians dislike the Indians who are almost half the population."

Tourism keeps some young people here in Fiji... But most of the best leave for the USA and elsewhere. The USA is like a black hole for intellectuals..."

High birth rate... here, but also many Fijians living abroad.

SOLOMON ISLANDS

Population: 512 000

Capital: Honaira, 60 000

Here we both did scuba to see sunken Japanese ships...

A met a marijuana dealer smoking... And we both partook..

“Some artists claim drugs have helped them to be creative.” C said

And C said, “The 1960s movement had a lot of drugs and produced a lot of great music...And love...”

“But probably best to stick to marijuana and beer,” said A. “But some of these new drugs are enticing.”

“Surprisingly many young people here take ecstasy and dance to trance music...” said A

A said it is another paradise. Sit around all day getting drunk and enjoying the sunshine. Not too many tourists.

But the paparazzi found us again and so we had to give up on our tans and go inside our hotel.

“Tantalizing,” they described us

A took ecstasy and partied with a number of young men and she chose one to sleep with.

C meanwhile dived with a diving instructor again and again and finally he agreed to love here underwater. It was a very tearful good bye when she left him.

C said, “You know I seldom rue my actions, but leaving this fine man is sad. Of course he was invited to the trip ending party in 2014.

A said, “A local man proposed marriage after I had loved him. I just laughed.”

We got a massage from a man that was very good.

C said, “I heard blind people have a nice touch. What about sex with a blind person. Blind dates maybe?”

A replied, “There are none so blind as they who will not see.”

C said, “In the dark, everyone is equal.”

A said, “Some people say they love someone, but others say it is not real love... Real love is something few people ever find in their tiny worlds”

A said, “The greediest people come here to places like this and take all the love they can get. But it is true that the greediest are not satisfied and always want more. Such people travel to the ends of the earth looking for satisfaction.”

C said, “You mean like us for example...?”

PALAU

Population 23 000

They are building a lot of projects in Babeldaob, 4 000 people now. Grants from Taiwan mostly...

Diving and fishing here...

Plenty of tourists e.g. from East Asia.

A met a man who was a great lover, but too busy with his architecture career to spend much time with her.

A said, "Do you think the World's greatest geniuses have little time for love?"

C said, "But some men are geniuses in love. That's the best kind of love. Girls fall all over themselves trying to win this type of man's love."

A said, "Best to meet a man who is like a diamond in the rough as they are poor and humble. Once they realize their potential they are hard to get."

C said, "The more successful a man gets, the hungrier for trophy girls he is..."

A said, "I met another man who was hoping to study architecture, and he claimed I was 'his muse.'"

C said, "Artsy, clever men are the best lovers, of course."

But as A said, "The show must go on. No stopping for any reason."

A said nevertheless, “I find these dark skinned men attractive.”

C said, “Mixed racial marriages are said to produce excellent children. By the same token, children of an incestuous relationship have many health problems and are not strong or good looking.”

A said, “Some interesting tourists/yachties here... also”

C said, “But everyone wants to get out of this place”

And C said, “They try extra hard to try and get us to fall in love and take them out of here... It is a sinking ship, they say.”

A said, “But between the two of us, we were like goddesses to the people here.”

C said, “One day soon the island will be virtually abandoned.”

A said, “I loved a tour guide here. He took the week off and introduced me to his family and we had parties.”

C said, “I loved another fisherman. He said the UN needs more power in order to restrict fish catches so there will be fish tomorrow. These ‘factory ships’ he said, were taking in far too many fish with their sonar and so on...”

Pohnpei island 35 000

We went to bars and spoke English on Pohnpei island.

The paparazzi were there but we had our bodyguards threaten them, which just made us all the more interesting.

A met a man which she later claimed, “Was love at first sight.”

A said, “How can you quickly decide if a man will be a good lover?”

C said, “Best to ask them point blank: Are you a great lover?”

A said, “What else?”

C replied, “And ask them if they are feeling crazy tonight?”

A replied, “It is good to try to get the essence of a man in just a few minutes.”

And C said, “Yes we have it down to a science.”

And C added, “Even off the beaten track however... here.”

Typical night out for tourists, but the quality of tourists in a far out place like this is superior. Too many Americans though...

KIRIBATI

Population: 112 000

Tarawan Atoll, the capital, 41 000

English was widely spoken...

Not so safe for women, but we had our 8 bodyguards...plus 4 local guards all armed.

Not so many tourists

No paparazzi at first, then someone called them. We were in more and more magazines and more and more people joined the “196 club.”

A said, “I want to have more intellectual love affairs than any modern woman today. But there is no hope of that as some women are very promiscuous and make me look conservative.

And C said, I met an older man (67 years old), but he was a real charmer. He said, “In the future old people will take drugs for eternal youth and loving old people will be what young people aspire to do.

A said, "I met a paparazzi and loved him, and told him to get off our case. But of course he was greedy for more and put our faces on the cover of his tabloid.

C said, "Your powers of love are limited.

A said, "Yes, but I had to give it a try. Get the photographers to be our friends."

C said, "They are not friends...."

And C said, "I am disappointed with you."

So we had an argument about that, with C saying forget the whole thing finally.

MARSHALL ISLANDS

Population: 65 000

English speaking and Christians mostly...

A said she met a man who liked numerous sex positions.

And A said, “What is the best sex position?”

C answered, “I like to be on top.”

A said, “Any position can be good.”

And C said, “These people live for loving...”

We loved several men each in the time we were there. Most spoke English and most were loving types of people.

We talked with an American climatologist, who said, Global warming natural causes are not necessarily in CO2 in the atmosphere. The atmosphere with its layers is poorly understood. But the world was heating up in any case. Soon to submerge many islands...

Not to be outdone, C said, “I loved a man who was a local yoga instructor. So I did some special sex positions also.”

“What a coincidence,” said A...

We met a lot of so-called “Yachties,” one told me “Life is a joke.” “So come on board and have some fun.””

Large yacht for our pilot/ co-pilot/guitarist/cook/8 bodyguards/secretary/our two own personal movie makers and our party organizer; 16 in total.

No photographers from the paparazzi.

Like most small islands in the Pacific most young people were leaving. They were mesmerized by the wonders of the new world civilization.

But said A, “There is still a lot of tourist money here to keep some young people hanging around. Also prostitutes.”

Back on land, A said she met a gigolo who she got for free.

C said “I met and loved a politician who said global warming might submerge most of the islands within his lifetime. But, he said, it is a world of change and tradition is worth nothing”

VANUATU

A said I think most men need love more than women, but we two have a very high sex drive.

Yes, said C, “But women are stronger emotionally than men.”

A said, "So many men are such wimps. I like a strong, muscular man."

C said, "I agree. "

A said, "In the future they will have designer babies who will grow up to be charming, clever and useful to women."

C said, "Don't you wish we could stay here forever? (C had met a local lover who sold fruit)."

A had met a tour guide operator and she gave him money to go and get educated. And then come back to his home island and help the people..."

But A said, "The Pacific islands are for pleasure, but not so intellectual and many young people leave their countries. And people say a man who has been all around the world would say the Philippines is the best place in the entire Pacific."

"But Pacific islanders really like to drink and party." Said the tour operator.

It is heaven for tourists, especially male tourists. But we had our fun...

We started our trip on the Great Barrier Reef... Scuba diving... Shipwrecks and coral...

Great white attacks per year were highest in Australia, but it was still very few cases every year. But C was afraid. However we did it anyway.

In Sydney we got invited to drink good beer at barbies (barbecue parties)...In addition to our usual night clubs.

“Tuna fish” they called us, meaning we were far out...

And we met a streaker running down the street. We invited him back to our hotel.

It turned out he had a stripper friend who was also male.

We loved them and had a good time.

One of them asked A, “What’s the most perverted thing you’ve ever done.?”

A said, “I was on the bus one day and a man was feeling me up. I was going to shout but then I thought it feels good.”

C said, “You really are a pervert.”

And C said, “For me, I met a man here who handcuffed me and whipped me and sodomized me. And he filmed the whole thing. It was pain, but it was also pleasure. However porn magazines printed the photos, much to C’s embarrassment. And now the tabloids were looking for more compromising photos...”

Yachts were common here...

C was interested in the aboriginal Maori art such as tattoos...C wanted to hear aboriginals sing by way of greetings, and look at their tattoos.

Lots of sheep here. We quickly got sick of lamb and C was allergic to wool.

Many like the cool weather and laid back way of life, here.

New Zealand is a far away destination. But now with the Net you can make friends all over the world.

So we arrived to a following of several hundred and were whisked away to our hotel where we had a party in the penthouse suite.

The next day we went fishing/partying on a large yacht. Both of us found love on the boat.

A said, "We seem to have good luck on boats..."

C said, "I wonder what sex will be like in the future? Will people follow in our footsteps as a rite of passage?"

A said, "Maybe it will be in virtual reality with drugs, but it is likely it will remain the same except everyone will be eternally youthful with high sex drives."

C said, "I think love is for fun, but some people take it too seriously."

A said, "Yeah it is fun but it can be serious too. Some love affairs are intense..."

And A said, "I love those intense men who live hard and party hard."

A was saying, "I thought it was boring so I stopped reading it but friends kept telling me it was a great book so I tried to read it again and read it all but the last page. I didn't like it..."

The pilot said what about, Borges "Labyrinths;" it was pretty good.

"But for me," said A, "Steak and wine was here and living here was all about enjoying life."

We didn't like dancing so we didn't dance the tango, and had some lovers. Just one night stands...

A said, “Maradona in his later years was playing on cocaine, wasn’t he? Here in South America it was all ‘for the love of the game...’”

So we went horseback riding.

C said, “I have to admit bouncing up and down was orgasmic.”

A responded, “Yeah. I enjoyed it too.”

How much steak can you eat we wondered? And how much good wine?

We both gained some weight here... But we were in good shape and used the jet gym very often...

C said, “In my dream last night I dreamed I was milking a cow. Can you interpret my dream?”

“I think our trip is a cash cow,” said A. We’ve raised now tens of millions in donations to our African charity and the best is still to come, I think. Plenty of charities here in South America...”

We now had globe shakers around our necks now even slight movements shake the small globes. Also one type for people’s belts and another for their shoes... And we had sold tens of thousands of rings and globe shakers...

Nightlife, soccer etc.

A said, “I met a man I love too much. He is perfect. He was a plastic surgeon. He said He could improve me and drew some sketches. I told him after our trip is over I will invite him to the end of trip party... in 2014??. He told me, “I’d like to do some work on you... maybe give me bigger breasts.” My breasts are already big, but “Why not make them bigger?” he said.

C said, “In what way was he perfect?”

A said, perfect body, challenging mind, imaginative. He is a painter of pictures. Many of his paintings are erotic dreams...”

C said, “I am envious. I wish I could paint. I would also paint dreams especially sci-fi dreams...”

And C said, “It is bad to fall in love completely if you are not careful. But of course the trip goes on, right?”

A responded, “Of course the trip is paramount.”

C said she had met a scientist who was working on genetic research. She said, “It was an engrossing series of conversations with him. He predicted that ‘We would be able to change people’s brains some day soon.’”

CHILE

Population: 17 million

Capital, Santiago, 5.5 million

Economy booming now.

C was interested in the archaeology of Chile.

So she took a trip to Easter island where some say they cut all the trees down and soil erosion resulted with accompanying famine, but maybe there was war and maybe they left the island because they were sick and tired of it. In any case there were almost 1000 stone sculptures...

Also mummies preserved in the dry desert.

And Stone pictures viewable from the air...

C met a man who was convinced man evolved in South and North America.

C said who knows as archaeologists don't even look for very ancient soil. Maybe evolution started in the "New World."

A said, "I loved a married man. I wouldn't have done it but he told me his marriage was on the rocks..."

C said, "What percentage of people feel guilty when they have more than one lover...?"

A responded, "Probably 25%."

C said, "Some find having two or more lovers to be stimulating and exciting."

A said, "What is the future of families?"

C said, "It used to be people would have a house and kids, but now fewer kids and more travel, even living abroad is becoming the norm. Also not getting married and having many lovers is the future."

And C said I met a nice man who was an alcoholic, but we had a good time drinking and talking. He could hold his liquor.

C added, "I asked him why he drank so much, he said, "It's a world of pain. And you have to find a way to get through it one way or another."

BRAZIL

Population: 195 million

Sao Paulo, population, 12 million

Rio, population, 8 million

Brasilia, capital, 3 million

Mixed races in Brazil, but Portuguese was the language.

Unfortunately we missed Carnaval which was a couple months away; but we consoled ourselves saying it was too frantic, too crazy.

But we went on an Amazon trip and caught some piranha fish. We caught some and cooked them up.

A met a traveler who claimed to have been robbed 6 times, but had 7 girlfriends, so victory was his or so he said...

Good beer, kind of like Mexico's beers...

Nice in a hot climate...

Copacabana beach and Ipanema beach in Rio with our bodyguards...Hot bodies...

Not so safe in Rio/Sao Paulo but we had now 12 bodyguards accompanying us. Our 8 from the jet and 4 locals who provided our bodyguards with guns...

By far the best nightlife in South America was here, everyone told us...

Samba dance clubs we avoided, as we detested the music.

C said, "Not so much great literature or music. Just enjoy life, people here are saying.

The level of English is low but improving fast.

A said, "I met a man with a very low ego. I told him to cheer up and made love to him and he was grateful, but he was simply too depressing for me."

C said, "A lot of people don't love themselves. But most love themselves above all others."

A said, "For some people life can be a nightmare."

C said, "I had a nightmare once of a giant man who was too big for me. And the nightmare went on and on. I had gone to bed drunk..."

A said, "Sometimes people think they are in a nightmare, but actually they seem quite happy to others."

C said, "At the end of the night there are so many ardent, handsome, passionate men who want to make love to us... Life is so easy here..."

FRENCH GUIANA

Malaria here but none of us got it.

In any case we were all taking anti-malarial medicine. The medicine seemed to have side effects such as blurred vision...

Interesting history here when in the 19th century the island was a jail for French criminals.

But the prisoners had no offspring for the most part. Kept in jail here for life.

The movie "Papillon" depicted a prisoner who escaped by sheer will power finally. With the virtually impassable malarial jungle, he built a raft and left...

A said, "I had a dream in which a man kept putting me in a cage and taunting me."

C said, “That sounds like many relationships.”

A said, “Did you ever have any regrets in your relationships?”

C said, “Sometimes I think I have regrets about every relationship. Things can always be better, but sometimes we disappoint ourselves.”

A said, “But my regrets turn into happy memories in the fullness of time.”

C said I found a lot of scientists in this country connected with the European space agency and decided to love one of the more ardent ones. He was a mechanical engineer for the European Ariane rockets. So, as C later remarked, she dated a “rocket scientist.”

A said, “I met a scientist too and loved him... He told her he wanted to put us in space to attract donations to space research. And there’s no limit to resolution of space... One day we will be able to see with telescope sfar more clearly than now,” he said.

In fact a number of scientists here said the future of space needs the private sector to take a chance on it.

Passionate people in French culture...

The food, the passion, the wildness... Here...

There was malaria here and one of our pilots and 2 bodyguards got it but both were taking malaria pills so it was not so serious.

But the show must go on, so we hired another pilot, a bush pilot essentially to help fly our jet.

A said, "Women and men in South America seem so passionate and loving. I love it."

"A lot of good loving here," C said.

Off the beaten track, paparazzi were there somehow but we ignored them from a safe distance. Our bodyguards could be quite tough. A couple of them were up on assault charges in varying countries, but they were quite loyal to us.

A said, "Do you think you become a better love over time?"

C said, "Yes, more and more I understand men and their needs..."

A said, "But you lose your sex drive slowly as you grow older."

C replied, "Anyway there are other things in life besides love."

A queried, "Really?"

C said, "Women don't need men. You heard about the study that found if married men live 6 years longer than if they were single. But a woman only gets an additional 1 year if she marries. So just use men for sex, that's the key..."

A said, "Yeah, men are like babies."

A said, "If you understand men, you can control them. But some maverick men are hard to fathom."

C said, "In any case you don't need to control men, or understand men; just love them. Even if they are just babies."

GUYANA

Population 0.8 million

Capital, Georgetown

English speaking...

A said, "Did you read that book, "Our Selfish Genes" which posits that men evolutionary speaking want maximum offspring with multiple wives. However women can only have 1 baby per year maximum so the woman instinctually wants to have just one lover."

C said, "I think that's nonsense."

Malaria again this time it struck our guitarist and another bodyguard.

We told them we'd meet up with them later.

A suggested we hire a doctor on board, but C said the trip is almost over but why not? So we hired a local young doctor for the remainder of the trip.

C loved a man who was a writer. He wrote short stories and said that the way to be famous is to write novels, not short stories. His stories were pretty good though, mostly about crazy Westerners living here in the jungle.

A loved a guitar playing busker, but he was not as good as our trip's official two guitarists. "Still," A said, "musicians are always good lovers."

VENEZUELA

Population 26 million

Caracas, capital, 3 million

Cheap flying due to low gas prices

Good nightlife but huge slums in Caracas

Venezuelans are proud that their country has won more international beauty contests than any other country.

Four of our bodyguards went into the jungle for a tour.. But some bad men attacked them and killed 3 of the bodyguards plus killed 3 of the local bodyguards. A said, "It was horrific." C said, "It is the happiest moment of my life as I am so glad not to be murdered. It sounds selfish... I know."

So we tried to regroup. We stayed for the funeral. We recruited fans from abroad to fly down and join us as bodyguards

And we made generous donations to the families of the deceased.

A said, "I'm beginning to think I am too old for this."

C said, "At what point would you consider yourself old?"

A responded "Now. I will get plastic surgery and wear a lot of make up and have lovers to my dying day. After all we have lots of money to pay for sex with young men when we are old, and we are getting old fast."

C said, "What about living life vicariously?"

A said, "That's what TV and movies are all about: let someone else live for you because you are too lazy or have a low spark."

Our pilot asked us, "How do you feel about tall men such as I am (200 cm)?"

A said, "Women like well-built men, what can I say?"

He was lovable, this pilot and he always went around with a globe shaker trying to promote our cause and in any case the shakers were a conversation piece.

We had to watch him and his drinking however.

COLOMBIA

Population: 43 million

Bogota, capital, 7.5 million

Coffee... Was famous.

We did some cocaine and laughed all week. Like Bolivia it was everywhere.

We stayed in our penthouse suite and partied as there were still rebels and civil war we had now 12 bodyguards and watched carefully where we went.

A loved a man who was a Chinese Columbian. He was very affable and they had a good time together. He taught our chef some new recipes...

C loved a drug dealer. He was high and energetic.

He asked C, "What do you think of me?"

C replied, "I try to keep an open mind. The people want coke and so they get it one way or another."

One of the bodyguards said 170 foreigners had been kidnapped in recent years by rebels fighting the government....

A said, "I know here in South America that it is a loving place, but do you really care about your lovers here?"

C said, "Love is fleeting."

A said, "I try not to care too much due to the trip we are on."

C said, "So you are saying you don't want to fall totally in love?"

A said, "You must never lose control of yourself. That's rule number one. There will always be many perfect lovers for us, as we have proven on our trip..."

A also said, “I think love is easy and that’s the way it should be. Some people don’t know what they are missing.”

A fell in “love” with a police officer. He said cocaine is truly loved by so many but unlike the USA the police force is too corrupt to solve the problem... But many people here don’t see it as a problem.

PERU, March 21, 2024

Population 28 million

Mixed Indians 45%, Mestizos 37%, Europeans 15%; on the coast mostly White or Mestizos

Pizarro’s easy conquest mirrored that of Mexico by Cortez. A proud civilization wiped out overnight by a group of only a couple hundred men. Just because they had firearms... and brought with them culture shock.

Culture shock is important these days too, with the global economy and the global village.

Of course C wanted to go to Cuzco, the ancient Inca capital and also to the abandoned, but well preserved city of Maccu Piccu.

Of course Inca culture, like so many other ancient cultures featured arranged marriages. Love is a relatively new concept in such places...

A said, “Do you think ‘love’ will disappear from the vocabulary of people in the near future?”

C said, “You are so cynical. Most people are conservative and will want marriage and love until hundreds of years in the future.”

A said, “To marry is like to ensconce each other in a cage. And tease and upset each other in separate cages. And the cages get smaller and smaller, your moves more and more limited.”

C said, “In the future most people will live for love.”

A said I met and loved a romantic man who wanted to know all my secrets...But I know from experience that this is a bad idea. There are many things a woman shouldn't tell her lover...”

A also said, “For example best not to say you've had a lot of lovers. Better to claim you have had a few and you don't want to talk about it. The past is gone you must say. Of course you and I are too famous now to get away with saying that.”

C said, “It's the battle of the sexes... Love is war... All is fair in love and war. But now the world knows of us and thinks we are too promiscuous...”

C said she loved ‘a descendant of the Inca’ and drank the local firewater and had a good time.”

ECUADOR

Population 12 million

Quito, capital, 1.5m

Mixed race: 65% Mestizos, 25% Aborigines and 7% White.

A wanted to visit the Galapagos where Darwin was said to have determined the theory of evolution. So she took a flight there.

Evolution seems to explain it, but some people insist aliens are behind it... They say we are a gigantic experiment.

70% below poverty line here.

In a recent survey of the happiest people, Ecuador was number one. The USA was in the top ten.

C said, "It just goes to show you money doesn't necessarily lead to happiness. Some stubbornly refuse to earn lots of money, which means nothing to them. Westerners now however are trying to entice poor people to strive to be rich."

More malaria; our secretary got it. But she was taking anti-malarial medication and we brought her to the best hospital and she was subsequently able to do her duties within a week.

C meanwhile got food poisoning and it took her the rest of the week to recover. A told her to eat our chef's food and only our chef's food.

A said, "I kind of miss some of my lovers I met on this trip and so I keep in touch with them."

C said, "Me too. It is a great feeling to have so much love, more true love perhaps than any women in history."

A said, "Yeah, you and I are kind of equal in terms of true loves, but I suspect you love your lovers more than you are saying..."

C said, "It's important to play it cool."

And C added, “While at the hospital, A met a white doctor here. He was fun to be around and had smooth hands... He said it is hard to find a good woman in Ecuador...”

A said “I loved a couple of Mestizos. They were fun loving people. And I brought a lot of whisky with me.”

And A said, “I’m tired of trying to drink local ‘fire waters’ and I greatly prefer Western alcohol.”

C said, “Some people can drink anything but I don’t know how they do it. Also here in South America and elsewhere some people like hot food, and can eat it all day.

BOLIVIA

Population 9 million

Capital, La Paz, 1.6 million.

It is a mountainous country, e.g. Lake Titicaca at +3820 m.

A lot of cocaine is produced here, quasi legal here now with the government.

Coca plant for altitude sickness, chew coca leaves, a mild stimulant.

A said, “The cocaine is here we might as well do it.”

C replied, “Yes, I’ve tried it a couple of times. I laughed my head off.”

A said, “I’ve tried it also.”

So we laughed at the parties and had a ball.

A said, "I feel more and more that romance and courtship are bull shit and I hate it."

C said, "Yeah you and I don't fool around. We are serious about love and instant gratification."

A said, "In particular, I feel that I am sick of hearing people's bad stories. They must inspire me or I'll dump them immediately."

C said, "I can roll with it though if I have alcohol or marijuana or even ecstasy to go with sex..."

A said, "We are being watched by spies in many countries so we have to be careful about our drug use."

C said, "For me drugs can be replaced by a lot of love."

PARAGUAY

Population: 7 million

Capital Ascuncion, 1.4 million

95% Mestizos, 5% white

Cool in winter

Like elsewhere in South America they had some bad leaders here in the past that really hurt progress.

Of course Paraguay is a remote destination; people who travel here did not do so to be in a clique in a hot country, but rather sought to meet the locals.

C said, “How do you feel about cliques around the world?”

A said, “Fortunately here in South America everyone welcomes and loves us. I have no complaints about South America.

C stated, “Our bodyguards make it sublime and also our local friends.”

“Many locals here and elsewhere were surprised by us, thinking us to be surprisingly bold and effective at meeting interesting people.”

A added, “It’s all one big party as far as I can see...”

C said, “I loved a local poet. He said in the future there will be a lot of poetry and the Arts here in Paraguay. But most people here lack confidence as they are so poor and helpless...”

A said, “A good education can turn anyone’s life around. With education the world is your oyster.”

And A said, “I met a white businessman. He was very rich and donated money to our cause. He claimed that business was just beginning to boom in Latin America and he planned to be a tycoon.”

C said, "It sounds like they are singing 'Animal.'"

A said, "How has falling in love changed for you as this trip continues?
What does it take for you to fall in love, now?"

C said, "I like all kinds of men if they have a good brain. Some of them were even ugly, but I loved them all the same. Of course it is hard to do now with the paparazzi watching our every move."

A said, “Yes apparently we are on the cover of many magazines.”

C said, “But of course we must avoid these paparazzi as much as possible. On the other hand we want as much media exposure as possible to help raise money for our cause.”

And C said, “By now if they want pictures they need to pay to our charities.”

So we are selling pictures and stories of us with our loves for big bucks.

A said, “But intelligence is not the only important quality for a man. Kindness, light-hearted, emotionally in tune, strong and virile and so on.”

C said, “I can only have conversation with an extremely clever man.”

Stable government, no military only government in the world to have no military... Well maybe the Vatican just has guards, but other than that...

Cruise ships come here as the culture is stable.

C said, "What these countries need is factories and industrial production."

A said, "Stable government helps... matter of time before foreign investment comes pouring in... But I asked a local man about it and he said, 'By the time this government gets started producing in earnest all countries will use robots and there will be no jobs in manufacturing. The Chinese are getting richer mainly due to cheap manufactures. But it won't last forever.'"

We rented a nightclub for our 100 local members and A said, "Kind of a lot of impressive men here. I had trouble choosing which ones to be my lovers."

C said, "I loved a librarian. I told him libraries are passé. Soon e-books will take over with free downloads and people will ignore the books in the library. It is happening now..."

A said, "There's not too many good books being published anyhow. I don't know why. I thought there was a lot of good sci-fi in the 50s and 60s, the dawn of the space age. But since then not much."

C said, "Even for classic literature there doesn't seem to be so much. Not much good music either. Yet plenty of people trying; it is just they can't write a great book or great music. It is a question of inspiration. For example Kurt Cobain almost single handedly brought rock music back into fashion."

A said, "I predict people will read less and less until finally no one will read. The fantasy video games and adventures will take over."

C said, "The bulk of the population decides many things in a democracy, but on the other hand on important issues they seldom have a clue."

A said, "This entertainment age lacks intelligence and emphasizes vicarious pleasures..."

“Anyway,” A said, “I met a painter who wanted to change the colors and shapes of everything just like Van Gogh. He was a skilled lover as well.”

A met a man who wanted her love so bad, she played hard to get. But finally gave in.

And A said, “Do you ever play hard to get?”

C said “Never and I thought neither did you.”

A said, “Yes and we don’t play mind games either, generally speaking. But this was a special case.”

C said, “But sometimes you have to appear to enjoy foreplay to help the man relax.”

A said, “Life is lovely, but you and I are serious. We both want to learn what this world really is.”

And A said, “I dated here a spy for the local government and he told me, the world is better than ever... More clever people are being born every day, yet the world is more safe and many speak English... It is paradise.”

C spoke, “Of course Honduras is off the beaten track and this makes it cool for worldly people such as ourselves.”

A said, “But there are more rich, interesting men in other countries, just as you say. Here is just a place to have fun.”

C said, “I met I met a white man here of French ancestry and we had a wild affair. Those French really know how to love...”

A said, “I loved a man who had malaria. I kind of felt sorry for him. He would shiver in the heat. But he was a crazy man who regaled me with his crazy stories, his feverish tales. He was hallucinating that there were armed ghosts all around him. I told him maybe ‘change your medicine.’”

We went to a posh nightclub upon arrival that was exclusive by invitation only, as per usual. This was all arranged by our full time secretary on board our plane, handling our affairs and correspondence.

A said, “It is a poor country but the weather is excellent and the people are friendly.”

C said, “Of course a lot of people here want to go to the USA, but many are content even though they are poor. Money isn’t everything for some people.”

A said, “Personally, I think if I had alcohol and good friends I could live poor for a while, but it is a giant world with so many interesting people to meet. “

C of course insisted on seeing Tikal for a day. It of course was the site of the largest Mayan ruins.

C told A “Someday our civilization will end too.”

A said, “Who knows maybe it will last thousands of years with people who don’t resemble modern people in any way

And A was saying, “A lot of people consider this country hopeless and its native sons and daughters leave for America. But many wish Guatemala would get rich some day. The economy is starting to pick up...

Fresh water sharks in lake Nicaragua. The country also has volcanoes.

We were in a bar we'd rented and we didn't like the modern pop music and told them to play us some alternative or classic rock.

And as per our usual request there was no dance floor but crowded with lots of people standing and mingling.

A met a man who brought her to a rim of a smoldering volcano to make love. "Let me stand next to your fire," said he.

C loved a science writer who wrote about science in Latin America. He said that "All diseases will be cured by 2080 and that people will be able to live forever at that time. And he said science will thrive in Latin America soon."

And he said, "People said Latin Americans can't do science, just like they used to say women couldn't do science, but there will be great scientists all the same."

C said it was happy news but alas she was already approaching middle age.

Afterwards, A said, "It is an under rated country. It is quite a lot of fun and off the tourist track..."

C said, "Most countries are under rated and that's why they get few tourists..."

A said, "People have these preconceived ideas about the world in general. But every country I have been to was surprising in some ways.

And she said, “If different people went on the same trip as us the results would likely be far different...”

Bianca Jagger, one of Mick’s wives was from here,” said A. “But I am already far more famous than her. She did some good charity work though.

A asked C, “Tell me about your first love.”

C answered, “I just wanted to lose my virginity in the worst way. I was 15 and I didn’t really even like the boy.”

A said, “When I was 14 I met a man who was 19 and seemed to have a lot of money. He treated me like a queen,” she said

C asked, “Have you ever improved yourself through a love affair?”

A said, “All love experiences make you wiser.”

And A said, “Many countries we’ve been to feature a great variety of multiculturalism. The world is changing fast. Soon it will be everywhere free trade in goods and people will be able to get a visa easily for any country.”

The tour guide showed us the slums of the country from the safety of a convoy of our people.

C said I like to think we can help a lot of people and inspire even more. After all we are both from the middle class, and we made all our money ourselves through sheer tenacity and good planning.

As per usual, we rented out a nightclub...

C met a man who claimed to be a clown. She said to him, “Can you do tricks for me?”

So they went to bed together. The clown juggled while he made love to her while telling jokes and he put clown make up on her...

C said, “I asked the clown, why he was a clown. He said he was entertaining people and when he entertained them they would listen to his thoughts for world change.”

C asked him, “How to change the world?”

He said, “Educate the poor.”

C said, “But as a humble clown what real effect can you have?”

He said, “We all do what we can. I think I have inspired some people anyway...”

Carlos Slim, the telecommunications magnate, is said to be the world's richest man, replacing Bill Gates as #1.

A lot of historic architecture in Mexico city, but the smog valleys detract from the experience

Mariachi bands and music everywhere.

Maya and Aztecs ruins; C met a tour guide who showed her the ruins over the week and made nice love as well

A said, "I asked some Mexicans what is important in life?"

"And most said to have enough money to feel comfortable, which was difficult in Mexico. Plenty of money to go around but some small numbers of rich people control too much of it. Corruption over oil."

And A said, “I loved one of these mariachi band guitarists. He was smooth. Just like Santana.”

C said, “Yeah I met a guitar player too, after spending a few days in the ancient Mexican ruins. Kind of classical guitar.”

A replied, “What is it about male musicians that drives women crazy?”

C said, “It is like they are pied pipers and we blindly follow.”

A said, “Women love harmony more than men, I guess.”

C said, “In particular I enjoy wild music of all kinds. But it has to be wild...”

A said, “It is all part of a romantic atmosphere.”

C said, “Why do women always want candlelight dinners, chocolates, flowers and so on?”

A said, “Of course all love can be good. But the important thing is to date a thinker if you can...”

CANADA

A poet said to A, “You are like a very deep well of purest water that none can see due to the depth beneath the surface.”

And so we began our whirlwind tour of Toronto...

Some said Montreal is better but we went to Toronto instead. A and C both went up the CN tower, 553 m, which for many years was the tallest structure in the world. Now of course in Dubai, Shanghai, New York etc. are building much taller ones...

Of course many people like Canadians and many want to immigrate there.

But truth be told there is no perfect country. Nor has there ever been...

However to be the place everyone wants to go speaks volumes.

Of course there are some who say Canada is just a pretty place with pretty faces and no strong views. But most people just want a middle class life that is safe and prosperous.

We sold tens of thousands of globe shakers for $10 each...And 195 rings sold for one hundred dollars each.

But we were whisked away from one nightclub to another. Everyone was invited, but our bodyguards kept unwanted people away. The paparazzi couldn't get very close, but they took thousands of pictures. But there were some as usual who had a small camera sized iPod or some such thing to record it on private video but everyone was searched thoroughly when they came in in these parties, having learned from experience.

But the man C loved turned out to be a paparazzi and took nude photos of her sleeping and sold the photos for millions.

A had better luck and met a fledgling writer who talked with her about the future. He said the future will approach the ideal and had many arguments to support this point of view.

USA, June 21, 2024

Globe shakers continued to sell like hot cakes. So too the 195 rings...

NYC commission a statue of the two girls on either side of the Liberty statue. They said it was only temporary but the tourists loved them so they stayed up. A was depicted with a drink in her hands reaching out, and C was depicted singing from a song book...

Final party in NYC... lasting until July 4.

We invited top scientists to the party and other important people including all our favorite people from the trip.

C got alcohol poisoning and crashed at midnight, but the show roared on at a certain tycoon's place and everyone enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

We had a lot of records in the Guinness book of World Records. And we were darlings of the world media.

A said, "I want to be the richest woman ever... This is just the beginning..."

By now we had amassed a fortune of $617 million of which we gave away $100 million for our schools in Africa India and South America.... (upon arrival in the USA).

We were thinking to set up schools in poor countries and going there to see that the money is well used.

But we were so rich and famous we made m money wherever we went, book deals, speeches and so on. But the main thing was the DVD boxed set...

5 parts X 2 hours= 10 hour DVD documentary. Which captures our time on the road in greater detail than this book.

People wanted to put us in space and people wanted us to govern their country and people wanted money for projects and the camera men and paparazzi were all over us.

Peace in Palestine and Iraq and Somalia and Sudan and Colombia and most places though Afghanistan was not completely solved.

It was the year 2014.

C said, “She wanted a kid...”

A said, “I want to enjoy my celebrity and so the two parted ways after all this time. A said, “Maybe we can do it again some time only better.” But they both knew it was all over. Time to enjoy their money and life in a different way.

Already we owned stakes in numerous nightclubs with exclusive clever clientele promoting love and imagination.

“We gave it our best shot,” said C.

“We shook the world,” said A

“Fortune follows the bold,” said C, “It is time now for millions of other women to step out on their own and reap the happy rewards.”

“All most women need is a bit of confidence,” said C

“Many women don’t realize they have something to give, but they do. Kindness, generosity, loving and nice etc. Mixed with toughness of course...”

C said, “If the women of a country are not free, then it is not a free country. The emancipation of women is still not complete.”

GRAND FINALE: SEX IN SPACE

They let us up for free with no training as it was good publicity for the space program.

You needed 3 to tango. With one person holding another one down.

People saw that we had made it to the top and had a perfect life.

A asked C, “Any regrets?”

C said, “I want to go to the moon as well. But that is another story.”
